Beal Held as Slayer, Charges Red Plot

THUG BEATS BACK BAY DEB, FATHER DEMANDS POLICE ACT

Beal Seized, Charges Red Plot

LAWRENCE, Jan. 19—Fred Erwin Beal, anti-Red mill organizer, held here as a fugitive from a North Carolina murder conviction nine years ago, today charged that Stalinist Communists in this country had "betrayed" him to police.

Beal began a determined fight to avoid extradition for the slaying of a police chief in Gastonia, N. C., during a textile strike there in 1929.

Judge Frederic N. Chandler in district court held him in bail of $5000 and continued the case for a week after the stocky laborite had pleaded his own case.

Beal, who says he has been hounded by Reds here since he returned from Soviet Russia with the announcement that he was "cured of Communism," told reporters he believed a Red "stool pigeon" tipped off police as to his whereabouts.

Revealing the existence of an American GPU conducted by Reds here, Beal declared:

"I have been moving from city to city and state to state. All the time I have been conscious of the fact that I was under some kind of espionage. Naturally I have many enemies among the Communists and their underground

Cromwell Offers New Tax Program

Doris Duke's Husband Tells How Laws Peril Wealth; Wants Sales to Pay

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (INS)—The present high tax policy of the government has failed, and a new plan is necessary in the drive to put millions of unemployed back to work, James H. R. Cromwell of New York, economist and business man, maintained before the House ways and means committee today.

Under critical questioning by committee members, Cromwell insisted the only way to cure unemployment and raise the standard of living is to see that there is a constant flow of money into private enterprise.

He urged abolition or revision of the estate and gift tax policy and abolition or reduction of income taxes, with imposition of a manufacturers sales tax.

BUSINESS STIMULATION

Answering complaints of committee members that a sales tax would increase the burden on the poor, Cromwell asserted his plan would so stimulate business that labor's bargaining power would be greatly increased.

Suggesting as a start the reduction of estate and income taxes to the 1929 level, he added:

"Why not reduce the tax to this level? I say the present system has been tried and failed disastrously."

Chairman Doughton (D) of North Carolina exclaimed: "Oh, liberty! Oh, liberty! What crimes are committed in thy name!" When anyone proposes something like this, it always is proposed in the interest of somebody else."

Representative Cooper (D) of Tennessee tartly told Cromwell: "The only way you know of help-

Bishop Burns, 64, Dies in Maine

PORTLAND, Jan. 19. Bishop Charles Wesley Burns of Boston, Methodist Episcopal bishop of the New England area, died today in a hotel room where he had been ill of heart disease since January 8.

Bishop Burns, who was 64, was stricken shortly after arrival here to preach at the Chestnut Street Methodist Church.

Mrs. Burns left later today for Boston, accompanied by the Rev. Albert D. Parker, pastor of the Chestnut street church, and Mrs. Parker, to arrange for the funeral in that city.

Doctors Philip Thompson and E. H. Drake said a heart lesion caused death.

Bishop Burns was appointed to the New England area in 1932 to succeed Bishop William F. Anderson, retired.

He came here from San Francisco, where he had been bishop of the Pacific coast area. Previously he had been pastor of churches in Philadelphia, Lansdowne and Coatesville, Pa., and in Minneapolis and bishop at Helena, Mont.

A graduate of Dickinson College he also attended the Boston University School of Theology and Wesleyan University. He was a native of Willow Grove, Pa.

Party Money Buys Funeral

Little Hartford Girl Dies of Blood Malady

The money for Estelle Lieber's party will pay for her funeral.

Little Estelle, 13 years old, Hartford, died today at City Hospital after a vain struggle of a year and a half against haemophilian anaemia, rare blood disease.

Parties given by friends and neighbors in her home town raised the money for countless blood transfusions that they hoped would save her life.

Another party was to have been given tonight. Now it has been cancelled but the admission money will pay for Estelle's funeral at Hartford tomorrow.

Cold Spell Continues Tonight

Don't throw your ear muffs away, because the temperature is going down again.

The mercury hereabouts has been acting like a greasy prize fighter. This morning it dropped to three above zero. Then it went up, but much, but up.

And tonight, according to the weather man, it's due for another dive to about 8 degrees above zero or slightly lower. There may be some relief tomorrow, though with higher temperatures and even flurries forecast.

Most frigid of all New England was the unofficial reading of 40 below reported from Winchendon Berlin, N. H., reported 32 and Boston's lowest was 3 above, coldest day since February 19, 1936.

Suburban points generally reported sub-zero readings. Concord had 24 below cold, Framingham 11 below, Haverhill 25 below, Lowell 19 below. Unofficial readings of 35 below came from Athol.

In the vicinity of the Cape much warmer weather prevailed, with the summer resort of Hyannis making in a temperature of 29 above. Block Island, R. I., had a 19 above report.

At Newburyport the Merrimack river froze over for the first time in two winters.

Tobin Stays Up Too Late

Puts Ban on Banquets And Night Affairs

Because "there is a lot of serious business to attend to" in connection with municipal demands, Mayor Tobin announced today he can accept no more invitations to attend evening affairs until after March 1 at the earliest.

Evening affairs he declared have taken up so much of his time that in order to try and catch up with municipal business he has often been compelled to work until 2 a. m.

Last night he attended five banquets and meetings and, as a result, was up working until past 2 o'clock this morning.

DeMille Offers Tobin Film Job

Finds Mayor '3 Stars Merged,' But City's Chief Declines

By ANN MARSTERS

Cecil B. DeMille took one look at Maurice J. Tobin—and promptly offered him a movie contract!

It happened during a radio broadcast at City Hall this afternoon, where the famous producer and Boston's handsome young mayor had an impromptu conversation before the microphone.

Tobin welcomed DeMille to Boston—and DeMille, scrutinizing the mayor's profile answered:

"If you should come to Hollywood, I would do it best to try to match the welcome you have given me here . . .

COMBINATION OF STARS"

"I expected to find a rather staid, middle-aged individual at the head of Boston's public affairs—but instead I find a young man who looks like a combination of Frederic March, Gary Cooper and Fred MacMurray.

"I don't want to deprive Boston of its fine mayor, and the people of this city may look upon you as their hero—but come to Hollywood and I will make you a world hero!"

Tobin, who seemed on the verge of blushing, smiled and said:

"I thank you for your offer—but nothing could induce me to leave Boston. I was born here, have lived here all my life, and I shall continue to live here, serving my city as best I can."

MAY BE SENT AWAY"

"But I can't take no for an answer," persisted DeMille, with his eyes twinkling sideways at Tobin. "Just think how you could serve Boston, how famous you could make it, through the medium of motion pictures."

"I think," said the mayor, "that I'd rather stay right here—because I love Boston, and because I have pledged my word to remain here, at least for the next four years."

"Perhaps," said DeMille, "the people of Boston won't LET you stay here for very long."

Tobin looked a little startled, but DeMille continued:

"They may be sending you to another city, somewhat south of here"

So we all concluded that he meant Washington, and Tobin smiled and thanked him.

ROMANCE IN BOSTON

Then Tobin rplad to change the subject by referring to DeMille's own fine achievements in motion pictures, and to the fact that DeMille met his wife in Boston nearly 40 years ago, and was also married here.

"Yes," said DeMille, "I particularly remember one New Year's Eve in Boston many, many years ago. I was at a house at 9

GOVERNORS AND PRESIDENT FAIL TO SETTLE FLOOD ROW

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19—After an hour's conference with President Roosevelt over flood control problems, Governor Hurley and other New England Governors today left the White House without reaching an agreement.

Unable to meet on a common ground with the President toward reaching a solution, the Governors went to their hotel and sent their experts into conference with federal authorities "to discuss the fundamental problems involved and the questions at issue."

Governor Hurley declared the stumbling block on which the Governors and the government were unable to reach an immediate agreement was the question of states rights.

The Bay State Governor's "face-to-face" meeting with the President was the first since his recent message to the Massachusetts Legislature in which he opposed the New Deal attitude on child labor and flood control.

Governor Wilbur Cross of Connecticut acted as spokesman for the six states upon leaving the White House. He said:

Socialite Charges Laxity

Revealing that his post-debutante daughter had been attacked by a thief in the vestibule of her home, Dr. Lincoln Davis, retired, of 279 Beacon street, Back Bay, called at police headquarters today and demanded action.

Dr. Davis declared he had reported the attack, in which Miss Emily Davis was punched twice, suffering a black eye, to Back Bay police Monday night, but they had "done nothing about it."

He has personally heard of several similar attacks and hand-bag thefts in the fashionable Beacon street section, the doctor told Captain Thomas Mulrey of the detective bureau.

Investigation at headquarters revealed that Back Bay station had failed to report the case to the detective bureau and had not acted it on the daily journal which is sent to headquarters.

WORE UNIFORM CAP

According to the physician's complaint, his daughter, Emily, social registerite who took an active part in last year's Community Fund drive, entered the vestibule of the Beacon street home at about 6 p. m. Monday.

There she was seized by a man, wearing a visored uniform cap, who attempted to wrest away her handbag.

She screamed in terror and the

Cromwell Urges Income Tax Ban

SAYS PLAN UNSELFISH

Rep. Virgil Chapman (D.) of Kentucky said an 18 per cent sales tax would be necessary to replace the taxes Cromwell assailed.

Cromwell, husband of Doris Duke Cromwell, the tobacco heiress, and himself a member of a wealthy family, asserted that he proposed his theory unselfishly.

Cromwell pointed to figures showing that 75 per cent of federal taxes now are paid by persons earning less than $5000 a year. Even with high taxes, the rich cannot supply enough money under the present system to pay costs of government.

"I am a big good Democrat, but in my opinion the New Deal administration has made the grave error of failing to realize that social progress depends upon increase in productivity," said Cromwell.

A slender, forceful advocate of the tax proposal, Cromwell told the committee revision of the tax system is necessary to preserve freedom and industry and guarantee a fair deal for the wage earner.

ITES PERIL TO FORD

"In their zeal to correct the social injustice and the concentration of wealth which results from the undiluted inheritance of large estates, many of our legislators and economists have overlooked the adverse effects which the forced liquidation of such estates exercises upon the public welfare, particularly with reference to the maintenance of competitive conditions and bargaining power of labor," said Cromwell.

He used the Ford Motor Company as an example of the effect of high federal estate and state inheritance taxes.

"Let us assume that the value of the Ford corporation would be fixed at $500,000,000 by the federal and state appraisers, and that the combined federal and state taxes would total 65 per cent, or $325,000,000," said Cromwell.

HOW'D THEY GET MONEY

"Now, from what source would the beneficiary of Mr. Ford obtain such an enormous sum in cash within a period of about 18 months?

"Only from two sources: First, from the investing public, and, second, from the cash reserve of the corporation.

"As to the first source, it is evident that at least $200,000,000 of the securities of the Ford Motor Company would have to be sold to the investing public, and that the investing public would in consequence, have just $700,000,000 less to invest in new productive enterprise which would give work to some of our millions of unemployed.

"As to the second source, substantial cash reserves are required by every automobile company, in the event that a change of model be considered essential and the company be intelligently safeguarded against unforeseen occurrences of any kind.

"The dissipation of cash reserves, therefore, to help pay inheritance taxes, would imperil the safety of the Ford Motor Company and might jeopardize the employment of many thousands of workers."

Cromwell said the economic effect of high estate taxes is even more pronounced upon smaller fortunes which are invested in family businesses.

By forcing liquidation of these family concerns, he said, the taxation policy of the government "induces speculation by creating an artificial demand for securities of great corporations, and at the same time, by placing a fictitious value upon such securities, renders it easy for giant corporations to obtain capital funds on far more favorable terms than small independent enterprises, and thereby tends to bring the control of industry into the hands of a relatively few men."

LIFT CHARITY TAX

"So," said Cromwell, "on the one hand, we see our government, through erroneous monetary and taxation measures, creating economic forces of concentration, monopoly and price-fixing and, on the other hand, seeking to sweep back the anti-capitalistic forces with the feeble broom of the Sherman and Clayton anti-trust act."

He proposed that reduction from estate and gift taxes up to the full amount of the taxes, be allowed for bequests or gifts in trust to recognized domestic charitable, educational and scientific institutions.

He said sale of trust property should be forbidden except under stipulated conditions. The effect of this, he said, would be to permit family owners of businesses to turn part of them over to trusts, so that the property could be used for good purposes.

On the other hand, he said, it would prevent the forced liquidation of such businesses as the Ford Motor Company, and permit them to keep operating as efficient, competitive units.

INCOME TAX SUBSTITUTE

Cromwell urged a tax system to replace income taxes which would help increase industrial production and thus increase employment and raise the standard of living.

He said that taxation has had little or nothing to do "with the existing growth in equality of income and the concentration of wealth," and that "attempts to minimize such concentration by political redistribution serve only to hamstring and possibly destroy capitalism without even beginning to correct the underlying causes."

"The chief cause for inequality is to be found in the fact that our unregulated money system thus never provided, year in and year out, such a flow of dollars as would assure capacity production and full employment," said Cromwell.

He said "the highest possible bargaining power for wage earners can never be achieved and maintained unless the investment of savings in productive enterprise is encouraged by a scientific system of taxation."

A Smoke Screen To Evade Responsibility

THE President, and those in the New Deal who speak for him, blame monopolistic practices in industry for high prices.

The novelty is that New Deal circles now FIND FAULT with high prices.

The raising of all prices has been a PRIMARY OBJECTIVE OF THE NEW DEAL, as Minority Leader Snell stated recently in the House.

The whole New Deal program, he said, "WAS LAUNCHED WITH THE DECLARED PURPOSE OF RAISING PRICES ALL ALONG THE LINE."

Price raising was the essence of RESTRICTED PRODUCTION under NRA, AAA, the Guffey Coal Act, the Oil Control Act, the Patman Chain Store Act, the Tydings Price Maintenance Act and an endless roster of New Deal legislative enactments.

Why did the New Deal slaughter little pigs, if it was not to raise prices paid for pigs to farmers and to raise prices people pay for pork?

NOT ONLY HIGHER PRICES BUT MONOPOLY ITSELF WAS FOSTERED BY THE NEW DEAL.

UNDER the NRA codes existing anti-trust laws were suspended, price-fixing and restriction of output were made the common rule, and the prosecuting powers of the government were used to enforce these uneconomic practices.

What, then, is the present hue and cry against monopoly and high prices but a SMOKE SCREEN, as Mr. Snell charges, to EVADE RESPONSIBILITY FOR WHAT WAS DONE DELIBERATELY and what the people NOW RESIST AND RESENT?

What does Mr. Roosevelt MEAN when he says at one time prices should go higher and at another time they are too high, and WHEN does he mean the one thing and when does he mean the other, and how in the public to know what he means and when he means it?

At a press conference in 1934, said the New York Times of October 11 in that year—and the Times is an administration organ:

"President Roosevelt today emphasized his belief that PRICES SHOULD GO HIGHER, and that the administration would continue on its course toward this goal."

AT a second White House conference on October 31, 1934, the New York Times report said:

"The President held a RISE IN COMMODITY PRICES AS NECESSARY TO RECOVERY."

If that was WHAT he meant WHEN he said it, what did he mean less than three years later at still another White House conference when he said (again according to the New York Times):

"He was SEEKING A WAY TO STOP INFLATIONARY PRICE INCREASES."

This is a record of amazing and probably deliberate inconsistencies.

They show the only really consistent thing about the New Deal is its alertness to claim credit for everything that turns out good, and to deny responsibility for everything that goes sour.

The New Deal wanted, fought for and GOT high prices.

But when high prices were resented and resisted by the public, the New Deal started beating the bushes for mythical and imagined industrial malefactors to PUT THE BLAME ON.

Search School Ruins for More Fire Victims

ST. HYACINTHE, Que., Jan. 10 (INS)—Smoking ruins of the Bernard Liberal College had given up 17 bodies or parts of bodies today, with only two recognizable.

Still missing were 28 students.

How many of them perished in the blaze which swept the college yesterday and how many had been taken in by neighboring homes was not known.

Swathed in bandages, 30 pupils of the seminary were in a hospital here. Others, it was feared, had died of burns or badly burned that death was expected momentarily.

Only three dead had been identified—Brother Napoleon Hamelin of Brooke, Que., and Joseph Vincent and Guy Malpain, students, of St. Hyacinthe.

Of four missing brothers, one was from the United States. Brother Napoleon, born Vincent Letourneau, of Pawtucket, R. I. Another was Brother Paul Armand, 25, a native of Hyacinthe, whose family lives at Woonsocket, R. I.

SIX FROM UNITED STATES

Three missing students were from the United States. William O'Connell, Westport, Conn.; Normand and Roger Poulin, brothers, Central Falls, R. I.

A lay brother and two students from Vermont whose names were not available were also among the missing, and the injured included Brother Maseau of Vermont.

As volunteer workers searched the ruins of the four-story brick and wood structure for additional bodies today, a provincial investigation into the cause of the fire was opened to determine whether criminal liability attached to any person in connection with it.

PRAYED AS THEY FLED

Parents who last night frantically battled constables in an effort to get into the still burning ruins to seek their sons wanted quietly but outside the jumbled mass of brick and timbers today while the methodical search through the ruins progressed.

Survivors revealed that difficulty in waking the boys had brought the large death toll.

Louis Armand, who made his way to the ground before the lone fire escape on the building collapsed, reported:

"Some of the boys in our dormitory wouldn't wake up. Brother Xavier shouted to us. He tried to wake all the pupils but he couldn't. He told us to say a prayer and we prayed as he led us down the corridor."

Roll of the injured was increased by the collapse of the fire escape which broke beneath the weight of the students as they rushed down it to safety.

Prior to its collapse, it was responsible also for some of the burns. Drawing heat from the fire, the metal treads and rails scorched the hands and feet of the boys. Some jumped rather than continue down it, and were injured in the leap.

Contributing to the rapid spread of the blaze were 14 drums of gasoline stored in the basement of the building. While the gasoline is not believed to have caused the blaze, it contributed to the speed with which the flames swept through the structure.

King's Bride Not To See Ceremony

Camel Caravan Brings Priceless Gifts For New Queen of Egypt

CAIRO, Jan. 19 (AP)—Ancient Egypt and her friends throughout the world poured gifts today at the feet of King Farouk and pretty Farida Zulficar, who will become Egypt's queen tomorrow—the second queen of Egypt since Cleopatra.

A camel caravan brought picturesque caskets filled with henna for Farida, who will not see the wedding ceremony herself, and may have to wear in public the traditional veil of Egyptian women.

Slender, dark-eyed, 16-year-old Farida decided not to use the henna, which was sent by a notable Egyptian family and which since the days of the Pharaohs has been used to stain the hands and feet of brides.

Among the gifts at Koubbeh Palace—one of seven palaces available to the 19-year-old king and his bride-to-be—were two shotguns presented by British Ambassador Sir Miles Lampson on behalf of King George.

The boy King was an delighted with the British monarch's gift that he decided to take the guns with him on the honeymoon.

WOMEN BANNED

Farouk also received a glittering new automobile from Germany.

Cairo business was at a standstill for the ceremony which will make Farida Queen. Flags flew from every building. Troops of Bedouins from the desert performed feats of horsemanship in the streets.

Sheikh Moustapha el Maraghi, spiritual leader of the Egyptian Moslems, completed drafting the wedding contract, which, these scribes copied on illuminated parchments. It was understood the contract did not mention the dowry Farouk was to pay, but stipulated pounds, 11 ounces and his brother what it would cost him if he should nine pounds, eight ounces, the divorce Farida.

The Moslem wedding will be wit- nessed by no woman, not even the bride. She must wait in one part of the palace while the marriage contract is solemnized in another.

15-GOWN TROUSSEAU

During the morning, the king matured to Abdin Palace and appeared five times on the balcony before cheering crowds and cavorting Bedouins.

Farida yesterday packed her 45-gown trousseau and sent it to Koubbeh Palace, where she and Farouk will live.

Second King of Egypt since the Ptolemies, Farouk succeeded his father, King Fuad, who died April 28, 1936. The boy king was under age at that time and did not actually occupy the throne until July 29, 1937.

From the time of Cleopatra, when Egypt passed under the domination of Rome, in 31 B.C., Egypt had no queen until Farouk's mother gained the title at the time her late husband, Fuad, was proclaimed king in 1922.

Husky Twins Mark First Birthday

PITTSFIELD, Jan. 19—The Bilodeau twins, who set a weight record on their birth, today celebrated their first birthday.

The boys, Richard and Donald, each now weigh 20½ pounds. When born, Richard weighed nine pounds, 11 ounces and his brother eight pounds, eight ounces, the latter combined weight for twins is a new one that figured in the eastern threat case.

DEMAND $6000

In exchange for the safety of the film comedian's children, the extortionists demanded first $5000, then $6000.

After stating the money would be used to "combat the evil your class has brought on us in America," the note added:

FAMILY GUARDED

Receives by the comedian over a period of seven weeks, the letters were mailed at the Arcade post office in Los Angeles.

Painstakingly printed and marked "personal" the envelopes were addressed to Lloyd at General Service Studios.

Lloyd and his wife, Mildred Davis, once his leading lady, have three children, Gloria, 12; Peggy, 11, and Harold, Jr., 6.

Enjoying a dip in their private swimming pool in Hollywood are Harold Lloyd, noted film star, and his three children, Harold, Jr., Peggy and Gloria. Secret threats made against their lives five years ago were revealed today for the first time.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 19—A five-year-old secret plot against the lives of Harold Lloyd, screen star, his wife and children was revealed today as arrests loomed in an eastern extortion case.

Three threatening letters now in possession of the Los Angeles sheriff's office are declared to form a connecting link between the Hollywood threats and an eastern extortion case, it was declared.

The letters, formed from words clipped from magazines or newspapers, are signed by "the organization of Alpha an' Omega." This is the same signature that figured in the eastern threat case.

Orcutt made his charge in protesting an additional appropriation for furnishings for the building after $150,000 had been spent by the city.

Finds Cancer's Cause May Be Lone Agent

Expert Tells Havana Meeting of London 'Proof' in Tests

By G. B. LAL

(Copyright, 1938)

HAVANA, Jan. 19—Recent research, encouraging hope that the cause of cancer is restricted to a few substances, or even a single substance, was reported here today by Dr. James Ewing of New York at the Pan-American Medical Association meeting.

Dr. Ewing was introduced by Dr. Jose A. Penaloza, chairman of the meeting, as one of the world's foremost authorities on cancer. Some 2000 leading physicians are attending the sessions.

Dr. Ewing is director of Memorial Hospital, New York, declaring recent discoveries on the cause of cancer, he said:

"Discovery in London that cancer can be produced in animals by certain hydrocarbon compounds, derived from coal tar, was the first proof of the existence of specific carcinogenic (cancer producing) agents.

"These researches lend encouragement to the popular hope that the causation of cancer is restricted to a limited group of substances, or even to a single agent.

DEAN NOE

On 18th Day of Fast

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 19 (AP)—Prevented from attending the state diocesan convention of the Episcopal church at Knoxville by the sudden illness of his wife, fasting Dean Israel Harding Noe expressed hope today that her condition would permit him to attend Thursday's session.

Mrs. Noe fainted at the rectory last night only a few minutes before the clergyman planned to depart.

A doctor said the strain of the last few weeks had been too much for her.

Shanghai 1938 'Sarajevo'

Single Act Could Set World Afire

Knickerbocker Fears Incident by War Crazed Jap, China Youth

EXCLUSIVE!

(Editor's note: Shanghai remains the danger spot of the world, which overnight could become the setting for a new general conflagration, according to H. R. Knickerbocker, the noted foreign correspondent of International News Service. In this, the third of a series "The Yellow Typhoon and Red Storm Warnings," Knickerbocker discloses the International Settlement might any moment become another Sarajevo. Knickerbocker has just returned to Paris after months spent in covering the Far Eastern conflict and a 12,500 mile trip across Asia and Europe.)

PARIS, Jan. 19—Shanghai is the nightmare of the world today.

It could overnight become for the "Next World War" the Sarajevo where one act of violence by irresponsible youths would set the world afire.

As news repeatedly arrives of conflicts and incidents within the International Settlement and the French Concession, it is perhaps a service to bring home to the public how great is the responsibility of our military and diplomatic representatives at Shanghai, and how difficult a task has been laid upon the American, British and French governments.

For they face in Shanghai the constant possibility, even probability, of trouble which no amount of foresight and good will could avoid, or which greatest forbearance could prevent from developing into war.

The true situation in Shanghai could not be discussed with frankness under the former Chinese press censorship imposed upon all correspondents, nor today under the present Japanese censorship.

WORLD FATE IN QUESTION

Behind the censorship is the basic fact that Shanghai today is as Sarajevo was in 1934, with peace of the world virtually dependent upon the will of irresponsible youths.

It is repulsive but true that in a certain sense our fate is in the hands of a comparatively small group of Asiatic youngsters capable of deeds of violence piercing before western nations the alternative of national humiliation or war.

Our own Japanese and the other Chinese. Both, for different reasons of course, wish to drag England and America into their war conflict.

The Chinese are for us as dangerous at this moment as the Japanese. They are die or die hard, obsessed in vain efforts have failed in toiling in the International Settlement and the French Concession, upon suppression or assassination of Japanese officials.

They may or may not be acting with authority of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. Certainly they are the type of young fanatics who would be eager to assassinate Chiang Kai-Shek himself should he show signs of surrendering to the Japanese.

In the first line they may be simple fetishists of the type familiar in old Russia or like Gavril Prinzip, whose assassination of the Archduke Franz Ferdinand at Sarajevo began the last world conflict.

But all have logical ground for attacks upon the Japanese within the International Settlement and the French Concession, for they know that given sufficient excuse the Japanese would like nothing better than to invade the foreign areas and take them over in a military sense.

And they know that if the Japanese march in to take over control by force from British and American and French troops, the possibilities of armed conflict and subsequent war would be immensely advantageous to the Chinese.

MATSUI'S COMPLAINT

How many of these young Chinese terrorists are now in the Settlement and Concession is impossible to estimate. General Iwane Matsui, the Japanese commander, counted upon them for a long time after he conquered Shanghai. In his famous interview threatening to take over the International Settlement, Matsui complained to us:

"You know yourselves there are important numbers of Chinese soldiers in civilian clothes waiting in the Settlement to commit acts of terror."

Since that time a series of bomb-ing attacks by Chinese upon Japanese has been recorded, although none has struck a big enough mark.

Suppose, however, that tomorrow Japanese military attache Harada were assassinated in the streets of the International Settlement. The consequences would almost inevitably be the military occupation of the Settlement which Matsui clearly threatened.

On the Japanese side, an equally dangerous situation is developing. Japanese civilians, many of them members of the foreign press bureaus, are clamoring for more aggressive tactics. These are soldiers of Matsui.

No one knew five days ago Japanese go about looking for trouble.

There wouldn't be any question of it [illegible] confident should develop into a [illegible] battle. The Japanese [illegible] conquer Chinese armies in [illegible] days, with heavy and light artillery, tanks and air [illegible]

The powers have no artillery, no tanks and only a few armored cars. The Americans have only a few anti-aircraft guns. The total supply, power, light and water [illegible] machine guns are entirely under Japanese control.

A keenly serious high military official of various nationalities:

"How long could the Settlement and concession defend themselves against Japanese attack?"

Not at all, was the invariable answer. "Maybe 24 hours if we wanted to commit suicide."

JAPS TO RULE SHANGHAI

Basically the Japanese intend to have Shanghai completely and absolutely under their control as though it were a Japanese city. Moderate elements among the Japanese believe they should and can take possession by force, of course, but with force gradually applied without an outbreak.

Another, the application of grad-ual force the powers have given every indication they intend to resist up to, but probably not up to the point of conflict.

General Matsui has threatened by take the Settlement. The general so far has carried out every threat he has made, none of which were at first believed by members of the foreign community of Shanghai and apparently not even their governments.

The general is presumably too crafty to want to do it the hard way, but what if the generals here were pushed by Chinese "do or die" boys or "forced" by his own young officers?

AWFUL RESPONSIBILITY

The responsibility upon the shoulders of our Brigadier-General John C. Beaumont, upon our courtly, white-haired Admiral Harry Yarnell, as well as on debonair but tough British Major-General Alexander Telfer-Smollett and Admiral Sir Charles Little is terrific.

To realize it is to feel that a responsibility is upon all of us in the fact of dangers greater than any that have assailed us since the last great war.

Another article in H. R. Knickerbocker's dramatic series on "The Yellow Typhoon and Red Storm Warnings" will appear exclusively in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

5 Stores Looted By Burglars in Waltham

2 Loaded Revolvers And Money Are Found Stolen

Five of the six stores of a business block on Main street, Waltham, were ransacked by burglars during the night, it was reported to Waltham police today.

Two loaded revolvers were stolen from the drug store of Thomas Allen, while the total amount of money taken from three of the stores was not immediately determined.

Police stated that one burglar apparently entered through a cellar window of a beauty shop operated by Miss Margaret Cahill, slid down the coal bin and then opened the rear door of the store to let his confederates enter.

Footprints were found near the rear door which was open and police found a flashlight on the floor. It was taken to headquarters to be examined for fingerprints.

After taking three dollars from the beauty shop cash register, the thieves gained entrance to the other stores by breaking through the supressive cellar partitions with a shovel.

Catherina A. Haggerty, proprietor of a variety store, reported nothing was taken. Money was reported stolen from a chain store bakery and the drug store.

A barber shop, located on the opposite side of the beauty parlor, was not entered.

Allen had been held up a few weeks ago and had driven off an armed bandit after one shot had been fired. Since that time he had been keeping the revolvers in the store.

Police Attackers Get Long Terms

Richard and Fred Gurall, brothers, of East Boston and Auburn, N. H., today were given the longest House of Correction sentences ever meted out in Suffolk court on charges growing out of an attack on two Boston policemen.

Both were charged with assault with intent to kill the two officers but were found guilty of assault only by Judge William C. Giles in a jury-waived case.

Richard, 24, was given three sentences totaling seven years, while his brother got a total of five years.

Each was given two six-months' year sentences for assault on Patrolmen Patrick Garrity and John Flaher of the special service squad.

The older brother was given an additional two-year sentence on a charge of operating an automobile negligently.

Garrity and Fisher were severely injured when the brothers, whom they attempted to question, hurled the officers from a car during a race of a speeding automobile last January.

Joseph Farina, 45, of Addison street, Chelsea, was acquitted of complicity in the attack.

Kelly Goes After Light Cut Again

No time at all did Lieutenant-Governor Francis E. Kelly lose today, as acting governor, in backing up his one drive to lower electric light rates.

Last night Governor Hurley left for Washington to attend a White House conference on New England flood control.

Kelly moved in to the governor's chair and his first act was to send a letter to Chairman J. Harke Sullivan of the Public Utilities Commission "requesting" Sullivan to take immediate steps toward obtaining lower rates.

If Sullivan does not do this, Kelly said within a reasonable time, "I shall feel duty bound to institute removal proceedings against you at some future date when I am acting governor."

"Francis E. Kelly, the People's Governor Pro Tempore," was the way he signed the letter.

Truck Hits Plank, Worker Killed

HINCKLEY, Me., Jan. 19 (AP)—A heavy plank which John Farnsworth, 58, Auburn, was carrying on a bridge construction project here overturned to hit the man today.

A truck struck the plank and knocked Farnsworth to the ice of the Kennebec river below. He was killed instantly.

This Beauty Secret Comes From a Doctor

Most women don't need beauty parlors. Your own doctor will tell you that shallow complexions and pimply skins are rarely matters for cosmetics. Because most skin blemishes are aggravated by constipation.

Dr. F. M. Edwards, during his years of practice, treated hundreds of women for constipation and frequently noted remarkable improvement in their appearance. He used a purely vegetable compound Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. This laxative is gentle, yet peculiarly effective because it increases the bile flow without shocking the intestinal system. Try Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. At druggists, 10c, 30c and 60c.

Beal in Police Cell

Frederick E. Beal, 41, anti-Communist textile organizer, photographed in a cell in the Lawrence police station, where he was placed shortly after his arrest early today. From behind the bars of the cell he declared he would fight extradition to North Carolina, where he is a fugitive from a conviction of the murder of a police chief in 1929.

system has been working against me."

Arrested last night when he answered the door at his brother's home, Beal said he was a member of the Committee for Industrial Organization has retained George Roesser, Boston labor lawyer, to defend him.

However, word said he would not fight extradition, but that he was convinced that he had been retained through Louise Waldman, now in New York, and Joseph Brodsky, of Lawrence.

Asserting that he hoped to raise the $500 bail, enough friends in Boston and New York "Beal defense" Beal said:

AUTHOR OF PAMPHLETS

"My principal reason for wishing release under bond before I go back to the South. If I am extradited, is that I may be able to speak before the textile workers of Lawrence.

"I have many messages to bring them and particularly wish to tell them what I have seen in Russia."

Beal admitted authorship of pamphlets opposing the CIO during a recent labor board election in Lawrence mills. He asserted:

"I printed them at my own expense and the CIO didn't like that. I have been speaking and writing continually in the past three years in what you might call an underground manner."

He said he was unattending opposed to the CIO because of Communist control, asserting:

"Moscow has ordered Reds in this country to work hand-in-glove with John L. Lewis. They are also trying to stir up trouble so that the United States will become engaged in war with Japan, Germany and Italy. I am opposed to war."

LIFE THREATENED

Beal told police he had been in New York before coming back to Massachusetts to organize workers against the Lewis union. He said he had been forced to leave there when Reds threatened his life and "tried to connect me with the Robinson case in Russia."

His flight from the southern state began when he jumped bail in 1929 following conviction for the second degree murder of Police Chief O. F. Aderhold. He and six others convicted after a trial that stirred nationwide interest had appealed.

FACTS ABOUT RUSSIA

He fled to Russia, from which he returned in 1931 "disillusioned about the Red regime. Was worse than that of the Czar."

Returning to this country, Beal declared himself to be an ardent secret operative.

"Because of my constant fear of apprehension, he joined the underground, writing newspaper articles and composing a book. Previous authors have which or presented the 'true facts about' Red Russia."

ference with the President, devoting most of that time to the question of flood control in New England.

"We arrived at the conclusion that the next step was for the experts of the federal Government and the experts of the state governments to get together to discuss the fundamental problems involved and the questions at issue.

"It is our expectation the first meeting of these experts will be held this afternoon. Today's conference was pleasant on both sides.

"Governor Quinn of Rhode Island brought up the subject of freight rates. The matter was discussed for a few minutes. It looks as if the difficulties will be ironed out to the advantage of all parts of the nation."

AGAINST PRESENT BILL

Cross was asked whether the governors were in favor of the McCormack-Brown bill providing for federal purchase and control of dams, reservoirs and water rights.

"Not as it stands," he answered. "Are you agreed among yourselves?" the governor was asked.

"Not at this minute," Cross declared.

SEEK SOLUTION

Here Governor Murphy of New Hampshire interposed an objection.

"Just a minute, Governor Cross," he objected. "We were 100 per cent in agreement on the New England compact until the McCormack-Brown bill was brought out."

Cross agreed that this was correct.

Cross said the governors "want to try to use the compact as a basis for solving the flood problem controversy.

President Roosevelt indicated yesterday the Government might be willing to abandon the entire matter of land purchases and damages for flood control, provided the states provided water rights were vested in the federal Government and the latter assumed responsibility for flood control, thus relieving the projects rather from power of irrigation.

FAR FROM SATISFIED

The New England state would far from satisfied with such a solution, believing Government ownership and purchase.

Each of the states however has its own problems in legislation that control of water power and power rights from any work done by the federal government. Each of the states wants to retain the rights in the hands of the state.

The Federal Power Commission has the right to control water power that the federal power act and also certain sections of the flood control act of 1936.

The McCormack-Brown bill was introduced in the last session of congress but was unsuccessful, but it appeared the governors were forming a united front in the matter.

The situation the governors met with the entire New England rivers and streams in mind, including the Connecticut, Merrimack, Androscoggin, Kennebec and Penobscot.

Tourists Relate Story of Arab Bombing

Hurled Into Group of British Soldiers in Haifa Restaurant

How a daring Arab tried to spice a noonday meal of a group of British soldiers in a Haifa restaurant with a bomb was described on passengers returning on the American Export Liner Excalibur, which docked at the Army Base today.

This experience and the killing of 40 Arabs by strafing British planes in an outlying section of the city were two adventures with which the passengers had no actual contact, but were presented with first-hand accounts and evidence when the Excalibur reached the Arabian port.

However, the tourists were supplied with their share of thrills.

TOURISTS GUARDED

"British soldiers in machine-gun mounted trucks," said J. Arthur Kilsen, of the Massachusetts Division of Fisheries and Game, returning from a six weeks' cruise, "guarded a tourist motorcade that left Nazareth and went as far as the Syrian border.

"It was clearly evident that the British have yet to find a peaceful solution to the Arab-Jew problem," Kilsen said, "and the Holy Land is torn with continual strife between the two factions."

A serious situation was narrowly averted in the restaurant bombing. The spattering grenade landed in the midst of a group of dining Tommies and other diners. A quick-thinking soldier hastily picked up the bomb and threw it back into the street.

TORE HOLE IN WALL

There it exploded, tearing a six-foot hole in the restaurant wall. No one was injured.

Included in the eight passengers of a total of 21 on board, who landed here were Miss Ruby H. Marlyn of Boston, returning from a month trip home. Mrs. Bessie Z. Massih, formerly of Brighton, returned for a visit with relatives after spending four years in Palestine, and Mrs. Pearl Arnold of Concord, who went the past six months touring Switzerland and Italy.

Popeye to Take to the Air Waves

Famous Comic Strip Character Signed Up By Popsicles

Popeye is going on the air.

At a meeting of the New England Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers today it was announced, the famous comic strip character with his Olive Oil, Wimpy and their pal-leagues, will appear over a nation-wide weekly program sponsored by the Joe Lowe Corporation of New York, manufacturers of Popsicles and other frozen confections.

The corporation has signed a contract for Popeye's adventures for the next seven years, one of the longest contracts on radio history, according to Lt. Yoo Herz, vice-president of the company.

Ross Goddard, secretary of the association, declared that Popeye would become the eighth of the Popsicle, the popularity of which is attested to by the fact that over a billion of these confections were sold during the past year.

In the keynote speech of the meeting, Secretary Goddard said there is much closer co-operation between the manufacturers of ice cream and that the frozen dessert and food business is improving.

He also branded the statement that ice cream is fattening as a "myth."

'Fireworks King' Gets City Job

Mayor Tobin today named Samuel R. Graham, Boston "fireworks king," to the $3,000-a-year post of superintendent of markets.

Graham, who lives at 19 Ivy street, Back Bay, succeeds Frank J. Kiernan, appointed four years ago on the Mayor's personal staff.

The new markets director combines a conservative supreme business experience with a flair for the title of "fireworks king" through the annual Fourth of July parades touring Switzerland and Italy.

Reed's Son Seeks Own Path in Law

Father Here on Friday As Judge at Ames Mock Trials

Awaiting the arrival, Friday, of his father at the Harvard Law School, Stanley Reed, Jr., senior there and son of the newly-appointed Supreme Court justice, declared today he isn't expecting any favors from the parent when he embarks on his own career after graduation.

The elder Reed, solicitor general of the United States, will arrive in Boston to serve as one of the three justices during the Ames competition mock trials.

The competition is held annually among the senior law clubs at Harvard. The other judges include D. Lawrence Grover, chief justice of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, and John Briggs United States Circuit Court judge.

PROUD OF FATHER

"Of course, I'm proud that my father has been made a Supreme Court justice—it is the highest honor a lawyer can receive," young Reed told an American reporter at his rooms on Winthrop Hall, Cambridge, today.

"But I think everyone has to carve his own career, just the same. I naturally took to law, because of my father and also because of his natural interest. But after I get through next year, I'm starting out on my own.

"Dad's success is a great inspiration to me. Maybe I can follow in his footsteps. But, of course, I don't know much about my future plans now."

DESTINATION IN DOUBT

"After I leave law school, I may go down to Kentucky, where I came from originally, and start in practise there. I may go to New York.

"So far, I don't know what kind of law I'm going to practise. My courses I have taken here at Harvard have been of a general nature. I haven't made up my mind yet what kind of law I plan to specialize in."

As far as his interest in politics goes, young Reed explained he had no ambition to run for any office himself, but that, because of his father and the fact that the family has lived at Washington during the past few years, his interest in politics has been strong.

FACES EXAMS

"I read a good deal of the stories dealing with the modern political situation, but whether I will become involved in it myself is another matter.

"My main idea now is to pass my examinations, and that requires plenty of work.

An honor student at the school, Reed's only regret is that he doesn't get a great deal of time to play.

He was graduated from Yale College in 1935, and says he still feels more kinship to the Blue of New Haven than to the Cambridge Crimson.

"The Harvard boys played a great game last fall," he declared. "But I'm afraid I felt sorry about the outcome. I wanted Yale to win."

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

"Washington Merry-Go-Round," by Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen, sprightly and informative column on the inside activities of political Washington, is now a daily feature of the Boston Evening American. It will also appear in the Boston Sunday Advertiser every Sunday.

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Don't be surprised if you see John L. Lewis and Thomas W. Lamont of the powerful firm of J. P. Morgan walking arm-in-arm into the White House a good many times in the future.

They formed a sort of mutual-admiration club at the White House conference last week. There have been as many of these conferences lately as it is hard to keep them straight.

But this was the Brain Trust conference consisting of labor, industry, banking and agriculture, and it proved to be the most important of all Roosevelt's many confabs.

John L. Lewis not only saw eye-to-eye with the Morgan partner at this meeting but also with Owen D. Young, head of the giant General Electric Company. The two industrial statesmen had never met the big miner until a few days before but they liked each other from the start.

ABSENT A. F. OF L.—A lot of people wondered why Bill Green or some other A. F. of L. leader did not get with Young, Lamont and the others to this meeting.

This was no accident. Inclusion of an A. F. of L. representative was considered, and the conferees actually cut out the list of Federation leaders in advance. But they turned thumbs down on them all, decided that Lewis could speak for the whole labor movement.

SECRET LUNCHEON—After the White House meeting, all of the conferees except Lewis repaired to the Mayflower Hotel where they lunched together in a private dining room.

Driving to the hotel, Philip Murray, a naturalized citizen and vice president of the United Mine Workers, rode in the same taxi with Tom Lamont, and as they got out, the Morgan partner started to pay the bill.

"Just a minute, Mr. Lamont," interceded Murray, "my life's ambition has been to pay a taxi fare for one of the Morgan partners. So I insist."

Murray paid the bill.

INSIDE STORY—Inside story of how this White House meeting was organized is important. It gives the best idea of what the shooting was all about.

Chief organizers were Rex Tugwell, ex-Brain Truster, and Charles Taussig, president of the American Molasses Company and another original Brain Truster, also was in on it. In short, the old Brain Trust was back in full bloom.

Taussig and Tugwell, the latter now understanding the business viewpoint, several weeks ago started talking with Lewis and his smart young assistant, Lee Pressman, about the need of co-operation among government, business and labor.

In New York they talked with Owen Young and the J. P. Morgan partners. Then they brought Lewis to New York for several more private talks, finally suggested to the President that he call the conference to the White House.

WHO KILLED NRA?

It is important to remember that Brain Trusters, except for Professor Moley, who early was a bitter enemy, agreed with the NLA. They thought that Johnson and Don Richberg had killed a golden opportunity to work with Owen D. Young, head of the giant General Electric Company. The two industrial statesmen had never met the big miner until a few days before but they liked each other from the start.

This was one of many things discussed with Owen Young. Tom Lamont and John L. Lewis in addition.

"MR. PRESIDENT, WE THINK"

—So when they got to the White House, the miner, the big banker, the big industrialist and the old Brain Trusters were in complete agreement. They talked straight from the shoulder.

Lewis and Young did most of the talking, but participation was general. There was no wise-cracking. The President listened more attentively, and talked less than usual.

One idea they handed Roosevelt was that he himself had been responsible, through price cuts, for what it had acted to stave off buying. Industry didn't buy because mentally it expected prices to tumble. Thus the President was partly responsible for postponing recovery.

They also emphasized that if prices started dropping, this cut would be passed right back in wages, that when wages were slashed, buying power evaporated.

"Then we'll be right back in a first class Hoover depression," boomed John L.

"You can't expect the steel industry, now operating at 23 per cent capacity, to cut prices any further," he continued, "when they begin losing money after they get below 40 per cent.

"The thing to do is to give them more volume through a steady, constructive program. Then they can cut prices."

He went on to cite workers in the building trades working only about 100 days a year, who couldn't be expected to permit wage cuts unless guaranteed a regular number of days of employment—which only the government can do.

Many other points were discussed, among the most important being:

1—That the absolute necessity of co-ordination between business, labor and government.

2—That previous White House conferences with business leaders had resulted chiefly in pious exhortation, but no actual co-ordination or follow-up.

3—That the government had started laying off men (through WPA) just as it was urging business not to do so. Lewis demanded that there be immediate large-scale government spending.

4—That business should not be attacked merely because it was big, but only when it was vicious; that big business needed to be steered for the benefit of both labor and the government.

Out of all this is expected to come a sort of economic steering committee representing labor, industry, banks and government.

Navy Asks More Power to Take Over Ships

Urges New Right for President in Emergencies

Copyright, 1938, International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19—In another step to perfect national defenses, the Navy today asked Congress to increase the President's power to requisition the merchant marine in times of emergency, and to include aircraft engaged in foreign commerce.

Senator Walsh (D.) of Massachusetts prepared to introduce the bill in the Senate.

The navy department proposed that the 1936 merchant marine act be amended to empower the President to take over all craft chartered by the U. S. Maritime Commission, whenever he deemed "the security of the national defense makes it advisable."

"The prompt procurement for use as naval auxiliaries of a large number of privately owned or operated ships and aircraft at the outset of war or when war is imminent, is essential to the defense of the nation," the navy's communication to Congress read.

The proposal gave further impetus to reports in Congress that the navy is seeking closer relations with the maritime commission.

ADMIRAL LAND BOOMED

A definite boom has already been launched for the appointment of Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, retired head of the bureau of construction, to the post of commission chairman to succeed Joseph P. Kennedy, the President's choice for ambassador to Great Britain.

The commission is now engaged in a $150,000,000 expansion program to revitalize and rehabilitate the ailing merchant marine.

Twelve steel cargo vessels, 12 tankers built to high speed specifications required for navy auxiliary vessels in war times, a $15,000,000 replacement for the Leviathan and 52 ships scheduled to be built by eight operating lines, are contemplated under the subsidy program.

ESSENTIAL LEGISLATION

"While the Merchant Marine Act of 1936 authorizes the maritime commission to requisition ships during any national emergency declared by proclamation of the President, the Navy Department feels that the assembling and preparing of merchant vessels and aircraft for war use must start earlier than authorized by that act, otherwise a decided advantage would be open to any aggressive enemy," the department wrote.

"The navy department believes that this legislation is absolutely essential for successful operation of its plans for national defense, and recommends it to the Congress for enactment into law."

Newsprint Probe To Trade Board

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Attorney General Cummings has ordered the government's investigation of the newsprint industry transferred from the justice department to the Federal Trade Commission.

The change will be made as soon as anti-trust division attorneys can assemble data on recent price increases by Canadian and domestic newsprint mills, officials said.

The primary reason for the transfer, one official asserted, was the justice department's lack of authority to subpoena witnesses and take testimony under oath.

The trade commission has both subpoena power and authority to issue "cease and desist" orders against unfair business practices.

Love Laughs At Inches, Too

3-Foot Husband, Wife 6 Feet, 4, Happy

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 19 (INS)—Billy Curtis, three feet, seven inches tall, reasumed his trouping today, minus his six-foot four-inch wife.

With six abbreviated fellow troupers looking on, Curtis and Lois Defee, New York's only woman bouncer, were bound in wedlock in a hotel garden here.

Craning his neck to look up at his bride, the dwarf said:

"We believe we can be happy despite our difference in size. After all, love is the thing."

Convict Who Leaped From Train Dying

WORCESTER, Jan. 19—Edward J. Moriarty, 25-year-old Holyoke youth who made a futile escape attempt by leaping through the window of an express train carrying him toward a 12-year prison incarceration, was near death in Worcester City Hospital today.

The youth, with James F. Crane, 29, also of Holyoke, was on his way from Pittsfield, where they had been sentenced to 12 to 15 years in Charlestown State Prison.

Gen. Johnson Says:

CORPORATE ABUSES

Natural Target for Attack

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19—There is little room to argue the assertion that the extension of corporate enterprise has gone so far as to create great economic provinces as closely affecting the daily lives of millions of people as any political government under the sun.

Hugh S. Johnson

It is also true that the people thus affected have little or no voice in saying how these governments of so much of their affairs shall operate.

It seems clear that such a condition cannot long continue in a democracy without some correction.

The only circumstances in which it could continue would be uninterrupted prosperity at least to the satisfaction of those concerned and such has not been the condition.

There is no mystery about how this situation developed. It grew from the circumstance of one unitary market of 130,000,000 people without tariff or other political barriers to trade, and from the resulting peculiarly American development of mass production and mass distribution. There could be no similar development, elsewhere on the earth's surface because nowhere else is there such a market.

So much power is a natural target for political assault. Without doubt, something will have to be done about it.

There are four things that could be done.

1. Laissez faire. Let it alone. That is precisely what our present anti-trust laws do, and don't let anybody tell you anything to the contrary. They are based on the principle of unlimited competition and these economic behemoths are the spawn of that principle.

2. Accept them as natural growths under natural law which have brought great benefits—together with whatever burdens and abuses may be proved. Accept them, but give people through their government, a say in the correction of proved abuses by letting these corporations live but requiring them to operate under supervision of government and with its co-ops tion in some such tribunal as might be called a high court of commerce.

Its function would be to tell them what they can do and not do; what they must do and to see that they live within the limits thus laid down. Some such idea is now being advanced as "the Richberg plan." Call it what you will, it is an idea that has been continuously advanced by other men ever since the World War.

3. Attack and assault them. Use them as a political issue. Attempt to break them up into little pieces by holding them up to the scorn and hostility of the proletariat. That is what is now being done. It is an effort to shatter an existing system of employment—nothing of known or proved value to replace it. It is the precise cause of the present sick curbs. It is a stupid slaying of the goose that lays the golden eggs. It is lunacy.

4. Have the government confiscate and attempt to operate them. That is the Communistic doctrine of "production for use and not for profit." That is the second step in the process of heedless, headlong assault on them that is now in process.

It seems to me—and it has for 20 years seemed to me—that No. 2 is the sane solution of this difficult problem. We can have the capitalist system and try to correct its abuses and honestly try to make it work. Or we can have the Communist system that never has worked anywhere in human history. But we can't have both at once.

I believe that the key to recovery is simple. Just make it clear that government intends that every man will be permitted to invest his money, make a reasonable profit and keep a reasonable part of it—but that abuses in that process will not be tolerated.

That is far from clear today and that uncertainty is why the capitalist system is not working.

Earle Urges U. S. Ownership of Coal Mines

Governor to Request Speedy Action by Roosevelt

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 19 (INS)—Government ownership of Pennsylvania's anthracite industry was called for today by Governor George H. Earle.

After a conference with coal operators, leaders of the United Mine Workers of America and members of his Anthracite Coal Industry Commission, Governor Earle announced he will request President Roosevelt next Monday or Tuesday to take steps to that end.

Earle's program will call for government ownership and regulation, but private operation of the industry. The government would purchase all Pennsylvania's hard coal resources and plants "at a fair price"—if this is impossible to arrive at amicably, then by legal condemnation.

The governor explained he hoped to convince President Roosevelt and Congress that "this is the most constructive and only enduring solution for the problems of the old hard coal industry."

Governor Earle discussed the plan with the President in Washington Monday, but denied that either Roosevelt is definitely committed to his program. He said:

"The President said he felt most deeply the terrible conditions in our anthracite regions, and would back wholeheartedly a constructive program to bring relief to a million Pennsylvanians, and lower anthracite coal prices to 40,000,000 Americans."

U. S. Jobless Aid Is Claimed by 1,162,000

Rail Retirement, Social Security Cost 960 Millions

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (AP)—The Treasury reported today that the social security and railroad retirement programs cost, up to January 1, $294,881,343 more than the income from the taxes imposed to finance them.

Total expenditures were given as $960,975,659, and receipts as $666,-094,316.

An official Treasury statement—the first on a monthly series on these new federal undertakings—emphasized, however, that such a condition was not to be considered permanent.

The Labor Department reported that 1,162,000 persons in 21 states and the District of Columbia filed claims for such insurance during the first week.

Social Security taxes, the Treasury statement said, were designed primarily to build up a reserve for the old age pension benefits, which in the initial stages they have been applied solely to other uses, chiefly grants to states to aid in getting their security programs started. Such grants amounted for about half the reported expenditures.

While several phases of social security—including old age assistance, aid to dependent children, various health services and aid to the blind—were started before the first of the year, one of the biggest items, unemployment insurance—$16 million, became generally operative only that time.

Three Gala Premieres On Rialto

Openings Next Week At Plymouth, Wilbur And Colonial

Next week promises to be an exciting week in the theater for Hub playgoers with the Broadway hit comedy, "Yes, My Darling Daughter," and Orson Welles' modern dress revival of Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar," both opening Monday night and Pulitzer prize-Winner Thornton Wilder's "Our Town" having its premiere Tuesday evening.

Hallo Stoddard

Topflight comedienne Lucile Watson and two other real favorites, Violet Heming and Nicholas Joy, are featured in Yes, My Darling Daughter, which comes to the Plymouth Theater for a limited engagement. It is the fifth play of the Theater Guild and American Theater Society subscription series.

The New York company, which comes here for its first stop in a tour of the important cities, includes besides the principals, Hallo Stoddard, Hiram Sherman and Howard Ferguson.

• • •

Alex Yokel who presents the Mercury Theater, New York, group of players in the Orson Welles production of "Julius Caesar" at the Colonial, announces a three-week engagement, beginning Monday, plans a tour that will include not only America but foreign countries.

• • •

"Our Town," which will have its Boston opening Tuesday evening at the Wilbur under the management of Jed Harris, internationally known producer of such history making stage successes as "Broadway," "Coquette," Royal Family," "Green Grow the Lilacs" and "Front Page," will here Frank Craven.

Mr. Harris has also presented the works of Thornton Wilder who is the author of the fourth dramatic success of the distinguished season. "The Bridge of San Luis Rey" and "The Merchant of Yonkers" are Mr. Wilder's others. "Our Town," which will have a two weeks' engagement at the Wilbur, first Jed Harris production since brought to Boston prior to Broadway showings.

Frank Craven, one of the leading actors of the American stage and screen, is also the author of "Our Town," which has not appeared in Boston since he was seen here in "The Nineteenth Hole" by the Copley Players.

At the Met Tomorrow

Dick Powell and Rosemary Lane aid with the heart interest in "Hollywood Hotel," screen version of the famed radio program which comes to the Metropolitan screen tomorrow.

Hurricane At Loew's Friday

Samuel Goldwyn's thrilling South Sea Island picture, "The Hurricane," co-starring Dorothy Lamour and Jon Hall, will come to Loew's State and Orpheum screens on Friday at popular prices.

The companion picture will be "Beg, Borrow or Steal," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's hilarious romantic comedy.

"The Hurricane," written by Charles Nordhoff and James Norman Hall, authors of "Mutiny on the Bounty," tells of beginning on the island of Mankura, 600 miles from Tahiti, where the native lovers, Terangi and Marama, played by Miss Lamour and Hall, are being married.

Their happiness is halted when Terangi, returning to Tahiti with the schooner of which he is first mate, strikes a derelict white man who insults him. Terangi is imprisoned, spends the period five years in jail. Finally he makes a successful break, takes refuge with his wife and infant daughter on an island neighboring his native Mankura.

While the search is still on for him, a great hurricane begins to blow. Terangi, unmindful of his own safety, plans a heroic rescue, rescuing the inhabitants of Mankura.

Met to Feature 'Hollywood Hotel'

Warner Brothers' lavish production, "Hollywood Hotel," which is based on the popular air program of the same name and features the celebrated Hearst movie columnist, Louella Parsons, opens tomorrow on the Metropolitan Theater screen.

The stage program, "Harmony Lane," is headed by Georges and Jalna, dancers, and Jack Major, of the air lanes.

Popular entertainers whom Miss Parsons, acting in her readily capacity as mistress of the air, will introduce in the course of the film's unreeling are Benny Goodman and his swing band, Dick Powell, Rosemary and Lola Lane, Hugh Herbert, Johnnie Davis, Glenda Farrell, Allan Mowbray and members of the Hollywood Hotel air show including Raymond Paige and his orchestra, Frances Langford, Jerry Cooper, Duane Thompson and Ken Niles.

• • •

• • •

The efforts of a beautiful heiress to double-cross a penniless artist whom she loves, in order to bring out his latent talents, is the basis of "Woe Girl." A Greenwich Village artist struggles to retain guardianship of two orphaned nieces against the scheming of their millionaire grandfather. Counterpointing this theme are the efforts of the pretty maid daughter, Miriam Hopkins, to help the artist win success and fall in love with the poor artist, whose only chance of legally keeping the children is to earn enough money through his various and ofttimes futile efforts as a dramatic actress. Miss Hopkins visits the art colony, meets the artist and finds herself admiring his courage.

Western Epic On Twin Bills

Frank Lloyd's magnificent production, "Wells Fargo," starring Joel McCrea, Bob Burns, Frances Dee and Lloyd Nolan, and "52nd Street," with a large cast of screen personal favorites, make up the double-feature bill opening at the Scollay and Modern theaters tomorrow. The most colorful stirring days in American history have been transformed to the screen in the Lloyd epic. Against a colorful background the romance of McCrea and lovely Frances Dee is revealed.

'Stage Door' on Olympia Screen

The current Washington Street Olympia screen feature is "Stage Door," which brings to the screen tonight look in on the eager and lovely girls seeking stage fame and fortune. Katharine Hepburn, Ginger Rogers and Adolphe Menjou.

The companion picture is "Submarine D-1," exciting story of the United States Navy's undersea division with Pat O'Brien, George Bancroft, Wayne Morris and Doris Weston in the leading roles. These attractions continue through Friday.

Frontier Nursing Founder Tells Of Service in Mountains

By BETTY ALDEN

MOST SOCIETY GIRLS are experienced horsewomen . . .

The social and rotogravure sections of the newspapers often print pictures of an attractive equestrienne riding to hounds or astride a sleek and graceful thoroughbred in a horse show . . .

But the sleek appearance, as well as the health of her steed, is usually maintained by hired grooms and stable hands . . .

So it is quite unusual and interesting to hear of society girls from our best and most protected family circles, not only caring for their own horses . . . but nursing them through sickness . . . giving them medicine . . . preparing and applying poultices . . . and keeping stall-door charts of their condition and temperature . . .

Yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Mary Breckenridge, founder and director of the Frontier Nursing Association, speaking at the annual luncheon of the Boston branch of the association, told of how the volunteer couriers . . . society girls who serve without pay in the isolated outposts of the Kentucky mountains . . . nursed their stable of horses MRS. JOHN NOBLE, Jr. through an epidemic of pneumonia and influenza last winter . . .

Horses . . . not the sleek thoroughbreds of the show ring . . . but sturdy animals which can carry nurses and couriers through mountain streams and over difficult roads and trails day after day, are an absolute necessity to the volunteers and the corps of trained nurses who take medical aid in to the huts of the isolated mountain dwellers . . .

A horse which was donated to the cause proved to have pneumonia which affected most of the other animals in the stable so the girls turned to and acted as nurses . . . tended them like babies . . . and did their job so well that they pulled all but one horse through . . .

Equine nursing is only one of the many unusual duties which a girl is called upon to perform when she goes to Kentucky as a volunteer courier . . .

* * *

Explains Other Duties of Volunteers

MRS. BRECKENRIDGE also told interesting stories of long journeys over the hills to aid the stork, carrying mail, supplies from house to house and acting as mounted guides . . .

Mrs. Breckenridge illustrated her talk with colored slides, showing typical examples of the backwoods families who are being aided, picturesque scenes of the rugged mountain country and the hospitals and clinics which have been established during the Frontier Nursing Association's twelve years of existence . . .

Sitting with her at the head table were Mrs. Amory Codman, chairman of the Boston group, and other prominent society folk . . .

A great many Boston girls who have served as couriers were scattered about at various luncheon tables in the Vendome ballroom, where the luncheon was held . . . Susannah Ayer, one of the youngest of the Boston couriers, was present with her mother, Mrs. James B. Ayer of Milton, and Mrs. John Noble, Jr., the former Barbara Warner . . .

In fact Susannah was present both in the flesh and in one of the slides . . . pictured as a hard working courier, astride her mount and wearing the serviceable blue uniform of the organization . . . Her own costume yesterday marked her as the typical fashionable society girl . . . a bright wine red velvet beret topping a black dress with which she wore wine color ascot, gloves and slippers . . .

* * *

Many Socialites Attend Luncheon

FRANCES WILLIAMS, whose mother, Mrs. Ralph B. Williams, is a member of the Boston committee of the organization, recalled her pleasant and busy days as a courier as she lunched with Barbara Bremer, Katharine Winthrop and Mrs. Marshall Fabyan, Jr. . . .

Mrs. Robert Homans was another present as were Mrs. Joseph Colleti, Mrs. Benjamin Q. A. Thorndike, Elizabeth Hovey with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Charles Hovey, "Sister" Ware, with her mother, Mrs. Charles E. Ware, Jr., Mrs. Francis Hastings and Mrs. Reginald Smithwick . . .

Frances Hovey of Milton wore one of the most fetching outfits of the day . . . a grayish blue wool dress and hat with a beaver bolero jacket and a strip of the fur in a visor effect over her brow . . . Mrs. Charles Noble (Susan Means) was also in the throng of socialites interested in the fascinating subject of the Frontier Nursing Association . . .

Wheaton Club Hears Skiing Lecture

THE WHEATON GIRLS who had an alumnae supper meeting last evening, had only to look out the windows of the College Club onto snow-banked Commonwealth avenue to get the proper atmosphere for the lecture and skiing pictures . . . which Frederick Fish of the Appalachian Mountain Club presented as the after-dinner entertainment . . .

Eleanor Ritchie of Newton Center, president of the Boston Wheaton Club, presided at the meeting . . . and among the others present were Mrs. Edgar A. Locke of West Newton, the vice-president . . . Mrs. Stanley Mack of Watertown, secretary . . . Jean Wilson of Newtonville, treasurer, and Mabel Thompkins of Winchester, corresponding secretary . . .

Plans for the annual dance for the scholarship fund are already being hatched up by these ingenious Wheaton alumnae . . . and the date for the affair has been set for March 4 . . .

Style Show To Be Feature of Ball

A STYLE SHOW of captivating costumes for southern resort wear will be one of the features of the entertainment at the Gardenia Ball next Tuesday evening at the Towne Club . . . to benefit the Charlotte Cushman Club . . .

Such attractive debutantes as Jean Stowell Cullen, Lucy Cochrane, Patricia Phelan and Amy Ranney will model fetching pastel dresses, coats and beach costumes appropriate for Palm Beach and Bermuda . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Royden Loring will preside over a table of guests at the edge of the dance floor . . . Others making reservations are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Royce Butler, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Eastman, Dr. and Mrs. P. N. Papas, Mrs. Grace P. Buckminster, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Coburn and Mr. and Mrs. Allan R. White . . .

Lieut. Frank Downey has also made reservations, as have Mr. and Mrs. Roy Harlow, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Claff and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Matsuki.

Young Set Matron

Boston Evening American Photo

BETWEEN SKIING week-ends and many social activities in town, Mrs. Nicholas Danforth is one of the busy younger matrons. She is the former Nancy Wellington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Wellington of Chestnut Hill, and she and Mr. Danforth recently celebrated their first wedding anniversary.

Eileen Mahoney Plans Bridal

Eileen Mahoney of Roslindale has chosen next Sunday as the day on which she becomes Mrs. Charles Baker, Jr., of Melrose.

The ceremony, at which Rev. Charles Bryson will officiate, is slated for 6:30 o'clock at the Holy Name Church in Roslindale and will be followed by a small reception at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Almyda Mahoney.

Marie Mahoney will be her sister's only attendant, while Willard Le Bohn of East Boston will serve as best man. Following a wedding trip South, the couple will make their home in the Jamaicaways.

The bride-elect, who attended Boston Notre Dame, is active in the Junior Philomathea. Mr. Baker, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baker of Melrose, was graduated from the Rindge School in Connecticut.

A dinner tonight at the Myles Standish Hotel will honor the fiancee. Mrs. Baker, Jr., acting as hostess for the occasion, will be assisted by Josephine McFarland, Margaret Oliver, Mrs. Richard Patterson and Anne Leaver. Also acting the bride-elect was the shower which Eleanor O'Neill gave recently at her home in West Roxbury.

Arboretum Club To Hold Bridge

The Arboretum Club of Forest Hills, Jamaica Plain and Roslindale will hold a novelty contumentary bridge party this evening in Fraternity Hall, Jamaica Plain, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Thomas F. Kilduff. Mrs. William R. McNulty will conduct a brief business meeting preceding the bridge.

Mrs. Kilduff is being assisted by Mrs. Frederick J. Becker, Mrs. John B. Brady, Mrs. Arthur R. Cowen, Mrs. Edward L. Currier, Mrs. William F. Donnelly and Mrs. Joseph H. Hogan. Mrs. Henry T. Kortas, Mrs. James J. Lavin, Mrs. Henry K. Meissner, Mrs. William Myers, Mrs. Nicholas Merchito, Jr., Mrs. Robert Niven, Miss Eva Pisapia, Miss Cecile Powers, Miss Eleanor Eisenhardt, Mrs. John S. Russell, Mrs. John Sullivan, Mrs. James G. Walsh and Mrs. Charles J. Wild.

Watertown Group Plans Musicale

Mrs. Allen M. Fay of Bailey road, Watertown, will be hostess for the regular meeting of the Morning Musical Club at her home Thursday morning. The program will consist of musical selections played by Marion Priestly Horan, cellist, the day's honor guest.

Others entertaining will be Mrs. Duncan Redford, Mrs. Ruth Fruher and Mrs. Esther Mott Tripp. Mrs. Orpilla Metsch Tuttle of Watertown is president of the group.

Group to Discuss Irish Plays

"The Abbey Theater and Contemporary Irish Plays" will be the subject of the literary meeting of the Junior Philomathea Club Thursday evening at the clubhouse.

The meeting marks the last official appearance of Florence Garvin Beede in those study activities' work as chairman of the group. Sally Beck will succeed her, and aldine Tenby will review "The Citadel," while the musical program will be presented by Eileen and Esther Barrett.

Molly Sherin has planned the refreshment menu, assisted by Molly Byrne, Helen Cronin, Marie MacGuire, Rita Foley, Phyllis Coughlin, Margaret Early, Marguerite Coughlin and Mary Regis Ryan.

As chairmen of the reception committee, Margaret Leavson will be assisted by Catherine Curley, Miriam Donald, Frances M. O'Halloran, Mary Shaughnessy, Annett Healey, Margaret Hurley, Claire McCarthy, Betty Reardon, Frances Hartigan, Emily Collins and Florence Stack.

Ridder-Randolph Wedding in February

Three years ago, when Miss Madeleine Randolph became the bride of Henry Sherman Howes, Jr., of Boston at the New York apartment of her mother, Mrs. Robert M. Hillas, her sister, Virginia Randolph, was her maid of honor and only attendant.

Now Mrs. Howes is planning to return the compliment and go down to New York to serve as a bridesmaid in the wedding of her sister, Virginia.

Miss Randolph has chosen Friday afternoon, February 11, as the date of her wedding to Hermon Henry Ridder of Bronxville, N. Y., son of Mrs. Hilda M. Ridder and Bernard H. Ridder. The ceremony and reception will both be held in the Waldorf-Astoria.

Mrs. Esmond B. Gardner of Ardsley-on-Hudson, will be the matron of honor and Evelyn Freeman of Pittsburgh will be the maid of honor. In addition to Mrs. Howes the bridesmaids will be Dorothy B. Hilles and Sherley Vere-Smith of Greenwich, Mrs. William L. Bolknap 3d, of Bridgeport, Conn., Mrs. Frances Rowe Conklin of Montclair, N. J., and Mrs. John Rollinson of Caloosa N. J.

The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mrs. Robert M. Hillas of New York and Greenwich, Conn., and the late Wilson H. Randolph. She attended the Spence and Bennett schools and studied in Rome.

Orphanages Combed For New Film Star

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor International News Service
Copyright 1938 by International News Service

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 19—Baby Leroy was discovered in an orphanage by Paramount and put in a Maurice Chevalier picture. The fable goes that he was the one infant to smile winningly at the French star and that was why he was chosen.

Jack Warner has an idea of doing a repeat on the Leroy episode with an older child. He has a story, "Little Lady Luck," slightly reminiscent of "Little Miss Marker," the picture that brought Shirley Temple fame and fortune. In the Warner play, the heroine, an orphan, is adopted by two tough customers.

A search is now being made of local orphanages for a child and the story Louella O. Parsons is being written by George Brunet and Albert Demond will be directed by John Farrow. What a chance for some little girl, who might otherwise grow up in a drab orphanage, to become a movie star.

* * *

Hurrying to America aboard the Normandie is Richard Green, well known British screen and stage player. He will fly to Hollywood the moment he lands in New York to play the romantic lead opposite Loretta Young in "Four Men and a Prayer."

* * *

Darryl Zanuck received a firsthand description of Greer's ability from Alexander Korda, for whom he had made a picture, and Leo Mordant, who had the English picture. An offer to come to Hollywood was accepted and chances are we will soon have a new movie star in our midst.

* * *

Walter Chand of Charlie Chan fame has been mentally sick and, according to his friends, so worried since his trouble with his wife that he has been unable to work. That's why he walked off the set and left a $1,000 production hanging in the air. The 20th Century-Fox Company has no intention of calling off the Charlie Chan series. How could they?

In Europe these thrillers rank among the most popular and theater owners are always sure of a packed house whenever a Chanie does his sleuthing. There has been talk of getting a new Chanie Chan, but that would be practically impossible, even though Walter Connolly does look so much like Warner as often mistaken for him.

* * *

A line or two: Lily Pons has been offered a young fortune to sing Snow White's songs in the French version of Walt Disney's feature cartoon. So far Lily hasn't said whether she will be willing to sing without being seen or not. "Snow White," it may interest you to know, will be filmed in several languages.

Snapshots of Hollywood

RICHARD LANE, suffering agonies with an impacted tooth, was rushed from his set to the hospital by the coast patrol. Fortunately, it's the wedding day of VIRGINIA BRUCE to Screenwriter STANLEY BRIGGS, and MARY LAWRENCE, daughter of VINCENT LAWRENCE, screenwriter. JACK BUBEN spends hours tearing at his nine watering VIRGINIA ann—that's how crazy he is about her.

HELEN MACK'S hat a foot higher than herself attracting much attention at a night spot. KAY JOHNSON returns to the screen in White Banners after an absence of two years. She is MAUDE HAINS wife. ROCHELLE HUDSON and HENRY WILCOXEN are the two most sought vacationers. That's all for today. See you tomorrow.

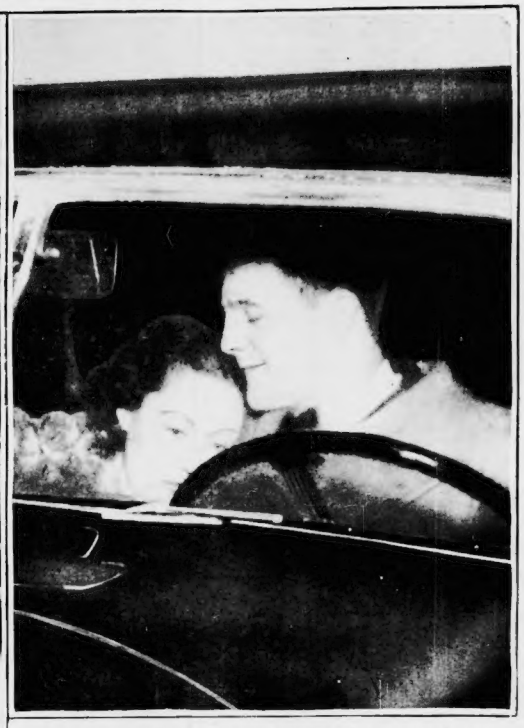
SOCIETY DATE DISASTROUS FOR MICKEY

JUST IN PASSING. As Mickey Kelly and Jane Prentiss, riding in the society girl's new car, rolled smoothly from their rendezvous near Mickey's home for their evening date, Mickey waved a greeting to Billy Wallace, extreme left, and "Hambone" Kelley, widely known pugilist of some years ago, in front of Wallace's Sportlight on Mitchell street. Kelley once fought Berlanbach; young Mickey Kelly hopes to rise as high in the ring firmament some day.



JANE HAS A WAY WITH HER. And when she determines that Mickey shall kiss her, what gentleman could refuse? So Michael Kelly of South Boston and Jane Prentiss of Beacon Hill clasped each other in warm embrace in Jane's parked car. And thus two men found them.

SURPRISE ATTACK. Jane and Mickey, parked at Castle Island, find their date rudely interrupted when two men approach, flash badges, order them from the car. The two little know Mickey's ring prowess, and as Jane looks on in horror Mickey's fists lash both intruders to the ground. Jane, however, is less interested in Mickey's gallant effort than in immediate escape flight. She fears that word of her escapade with Mickey may become public, and deserts him to the mercy of his assailants, one of whom is armed.

PUBLIC DANCE HALL. Parties at the Towne Club are not within Mickey's financial horizon, and it is to the Roseland State Ball Room on Massachusetts avenue that he escorts Jane Prentiss, heiress to Beacon Hill fortune, on their first date. Jane finds, however, that absence of a stag line is virtually only difference between public and society dances. Three whose faces are circled in crowd of dancers with Jane and Mickey will be awarded $5 upon calling at the Boston American office.

But Branch Bobbitt, like so many other independent experts, prefers Luckies . . .

"AT AUCTION in my warehouse in Farmville, North Carolina," says Mr. Branch Bobbitt, "the higher the tobacco sells for, the better my profits. So I'm always glad to see Leaks & Shine buyers there bidding. They know what they want and they keep bidding right up until they get it.

"Well — in a cigarette — it's the tobacco that counts. I know tobacco and I know what tobacco is in what cigarettes. So that's one reason I've smoked Luckies for 5 or 6 years."

Mr. Bobbitt represents the "aristocracy" of tobacco experts. He judges the tobacco that the growers grow. He's impartial, not connected with any cigarette manufacturer.

Many other experts agree with Mr. Bobbitt. Sworn records show that, among independent tobacco experts, Luckies have twice as many exclusive smokers as have all the other cigarettes combined.

THE FLAVOR of the peanut is such a popular one that we have sometimes wondered why it was not more frequently used in the preparation of food in the home.

PEANUT BRITTLE TRIPLE

1 or 2 eggs
4 cups milk
1-3 cup quick-cooking tapioca
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 or 2 egg whites
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup crushed peanut brittle

[illegible]

SALTED NUTS

½ lb. almonds blanched
½ lb. raw peanuts skins removed
½ lb. pecan meats
1 cup melted butter or olive oil
[illegible]

PEANUT BUTTER RAREBIT

1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper
½ cup peanut butter
½ teaspoon mustard
1 cup milk

[illegible]

PEANUT COOKIES

2½ cup shortening
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup peanut butter
2½ cup granulated sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
2¾ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
1 cup peanuts, chopped and toasted
½ cup evaporated milk
2 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder

Combine shortening and vanilla and peanut butter and mix well. Add granulated sugar gradually and cream thoroughly. Combine eggs and brown sugar and mix well. Add to shortening mixture and blend. Add peanuts and mix well. Sift flour with baking powder and add to mix and blend well. Drop from tip of teaspoon on greased baking sheet. Or press through a pastry bag, let stand a few minutes, then flatten cookies by stamping with a gauze covered with a damp cloth. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 12 to 15 minutes. Makes seven dozen.

Best Bets Tonight On Air Waves

Radioland Reflections

By N. F. T.

Judging from advance advices, there will be some of the old two-reel film thrill substance to "Gang Busters" tonight (WEEI) at 10 o'clock.

Runaway train action, with another passenger flier on the same track, quick thinking and all the breath-taking suspense of the just in time character is in store when the well-known half-hour takes the air.

TO CHANGE RULES

"From the results of this survey we expect to learn the basis for a revision of our rules, if need be, to make them just and workable for students who are self-supporting or partially so and whose opportunities for self help may be limited by the time spent in athletics.

Barry Submits New Plan For Everett Schoolboys

Under New Plan State Will Furnish Monetary Help

In keeping with the rule recently passed by the Massachusetts Headmasters Association that trade school students are no longer eligible to compete for high school athletic teams, the Everett school committee will study a plan of organization for the athletic department of that city's trade school, at a special meeting called for tomorrow evening.

The plan, submitted by School Committeeman John J. Barry, calls for the supervision of athletics by a faculty manager, a separate teacher-coach for each of four sports—football, baseball, hockey and track—an assistant football coach and an assistant baseball coach.

Teacher-coaches shall also be elected for other sports if conditions whose educational activities are carried out in accordance with the school's after-noon athletic program. Boys' basketball and girls' field hockey are included in this program.

FAVORS SATURDAY

Also in his plan, Committeeman Barry suggests that all the school's baseball games be played on Saturday afternoon. Such an idea he says, will foster encouragement among the boys participating and will enlist the support in the operation of the citizens of Everett.

Committeeman Barry further declares in his report that the state department of education has agreed to assume 50 per cent of the cost of the amount that will be paid for teacher-coaches in the trade school.

This financial assistance from the state, he explains, will decrease the Everett taxpayers' burden as regards the running of the athletic department in the trade school.

It was Committeeman Barry who brought the name of Denny Gildea, coach of all sports at Everett high into the headlines a month back when he announced that the well known mentor would be drafted as executive of all organizations at the high school but football.

At this time Barry submitted a plan of reorganization for the high and junior high athletic departments but it proved unfair to be made school wide.

In his new and further high school setup Gildea will be relieved of coach he elected for the season and that a general supervisor of athletics be elected.

Under the program, Coach Gildea would be dropped as baseball and track head and kept for football.

'Pures' Pleased At Week's Rest

Word that the State boxing championships had been postponed until next week by the Boston Arena, due to the northeast storm was received with glee by the amateur boxers who are now in full out for the State championships of 1938.

This was especially true with the eight boys who qualified in the last tryouts held on January 13. They did not have a great deal of time to recover from the strain of the preliminary meeting before Monday but the added week will give them the needed time to polish off for the Finals.

The Ad-Pointers' show Monday's program are the best looking bantams uncovered in the figure ranks in these parts for years.

Charlie Driscoll '4 Mattapan is a hard-hitting two-fisted battler. Dick Volpe of Waltham is some with leaps and bounds in the last month. Homer Robichaud of Worcester proved his ability by winning the recent N. E. All-America championship at the weight. Gerry Hall of East Brat have a great deal of years' experience, rounds out a select group of battling bantams.

George Salamone of East Boston, Eastern All-America champion in the 126 pound class, feels that with an added week in which to catch his top form he should be able to wade through the featherweight class without any difficulty next Monday.

Bruins Win 3; Lose Point to Rangers

By BILL GRIMES

After a 10-day stay at home during which they beat the Red Wings, Les Canadiens and Chicago, the Bruins will leave tomorrow on a Toronto-Chicago trip.

Since they were last defeated, the Bruins have scored a dozen goals in three games against three by their opponents.

They walked through a disorganized Detroit club to win, 6 to 2, squeezed through with a 1-0 victory over the Flying Frenchmen and last night hung a 5-1 defeat on Bill Stewart's Rangers.

Despite the fact that they have weathered three games without a defeat, the Hasmen have lost a point to Rangers, who in their last four starts chalked up three wins and a tie. But the Bruins are a game in hand on Rangers and an even break on this road trip will assure them of at least a point lead over Lester Patrick's charges, entering next Tuesday night's schedule.

THIRD PERIOD SURGE

The Colville brothers and Cecil Dillon pulled Rangers through with a 3-1 overtime victory over Les Canadiens last night in New York.

Playing the right defensive game they displayed here on Sunday, the Canucks were deadlocked, 1 to 1, with the end of the regulation 60 minutes. But during the overtime period the Colvilles teamed for a tally and then Dillon ... and then Lynn Patrick combined with Dillon for another goal.

The Bruins gave a fine account of themselves last night but they did not click consistently until the third period.

Bill Cowley took a pass from Ralph Geiffitte early in the first period and "Wolf" scored to put the Hasmen out in front. Then Art Jackson, Woody Dumart and Milt Schmidt teamed after taking a pass from Eddie Shore at the Boston blue line while Bill Cowley and Roger Jenkins were serving major penalties for engaging in a short but snappy fight.

Late in the second chapter "Mush" Mason converted a pass from "Doc" Romnes for the lone Hawk goal, and the teams went to the second intermission with the count standing 2 to 1.

ASSIST ON KICK

With about five minutes to go the Bruins applied the pressure. Manager Bill Stewart had sent in five forward lines to strengthen his offense.

Roy Gridsworthy cinched the decision for the Bruins by scoring on a three man attack with Dit Clapper and Art Jackson and, a couple of minutes later, Bobby Bauer came into possession of the puck at the Hawk line with no one in front of him but Mike Karakas.

Bobby went right in on Mike faked a shot which pulled the Hawk goalie out of position, and then flipped the disc into the net.

And, about a half minute later Geiffitte started a rush, lost the puck off his stick retrieved it with his skate and kicked it forward to Bill Cowley, who beat Karakas for the fifth Boston marker.

Expert Points To the Record In Declines

Haney Finds Steel Production Now At the Bottom

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)
Special to Boston Evening American

NEW YORK, Jan. 19—Unfortunately, one month leads to another. We can't just turn our backs on December, 1937, and look forward to all the spending the banks are now promising to do. So here goes for a grim facing of the latest statistics.

• • •

In the iron and steel industry, December brought sharp curtailment for the third month in succession, carrying the index (not yet adjusted) to the lowest level since Jan. 1934. As people quit buying cars and building, manufacturers found their inventories of iron and steel excessive, and stole at little.

But the curtailment was so drastic that it went far toward restoring a stronger situation. Steel production is down to 40 per cent of "normal," which is usually low enough. It is down to its level at the "dips" in 1924, 1927 and 1930, where the reactions after the fire violent New Deal boomlets were stopped.

It is as low, compared with both steel shipments and activity in steel consuming industries that inventories must be dwindling all along the line.

A fair demand continues to come from the farm equipment, shipbuilding, airplane and oil industries. Steel production seems to have hit bottom.

Recovery, however, will be slow until greater political certainty releases the demand for capital goods, such as are made from building railways and utilities.

December machine tool orders were disappointing. The total was up slightly after adjustment, but 63 per cent of the business came from abroad. The domestic orders were down, and the lowest since March, 1935—another reminder that nearly all the New Deal expansion has been wiped out.

• • •

As to building activity, there isn't much to report except an artificial and temporary December spurt in New York. Elsewhere there was one of those rushes to get "permits" before a new building code went into effect.

Building is still depressed, and will do so as long as its taxes (2), labor costs, its political interference and (4) ordinary profitability remain too high.

Looks as if new deals but don't mix with building activity, either here or in France.

Of course, the metal industries are hurt, and the new accumulation unsold stocks of copper, lead and zinc. The zinc surplus rose sharply in December, while orders and unfilled orders decline. Evidently production must be curtailed here or else prices be reduced sharply.

• • •

Factory employment and payrolls slumped badly last month and much more than the usual seasonal variation. In New York State employment was 9.4 per cent less and payrolls 16.6 per cent of the 1925-27 average, and compared with a year ago. (The peak was 91 in September.)

Large declines came in metals, machinery, automobiles and railroad car shops, but some 39 building materials, clothing, and shoe plants made gains.

Some 440 large department stores in 21% cities reported sales were 9 per cent below a year ago. The December sales were 10 per cent of the 1922-25 average, against 91 in November. Only Atlanta and Dallas territories made much of a showing.

• • •

Wholesale prices fell sharply. On Jan. 4, 1938, the same 30 goods could be bought for $95.56 that cost $97.31 on Dec. 1, and $111.26 a year before.

At the same time, the volume of goods coming to market, as judged by railway freights, was also lower, but not so sharply as prices. Thus my "pv line" barometer declined again, showing continued liquidation with no immediate recovery indicated, but a position probably very near the bottom of a business cycle.

• • •

The latest weekly figures show scattering gains and declines. Mostly, however, they represent a mere seasonal rebound from the real end-shut-downs.

Boston Reserve Bank Net Up

Federal Reserve Bank of Boston reports for the year ended December 31, 1937, net profits of $643,086. After payment of $6647 to the Secretary of the Treasury, there was a net balance of $636,439 from which $72,786 was transferred to surplus and $562,652 paid as dividends.

In 1936 net profit was $522,122, and $76,094 was transferred from surplus to pay dividends of $446,028.

$563,727 after $34,488 payment to Secretary of Treasury.

Profit and loss account for the year ended December 31, 1937, compares:

	1937	1936	1935
Earnings	$1,016,707	$ 761,395	$ 727,241
Current exp.	455,946	415,273	381,619
Amt. for divs.	636,439	522,122	470,540
Divs paid	562,652	446,028	401,425
From surplus	73,786	76,094	69,012

*Added to surplus.

Steel Production Rises to 30 P. C.

Outlook for Future Business Is Still Obscure, Says "Iron Age"

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—Steel ingot production this week has risen to 30 per cent of capacity, compared with 28 per cent last week, but the outlook for future business is still obscure, "Iron Age" said today in its weekly review of the steel industry.

"The flow of business is so irregular that no definite upward trend is yet indicated," the publication said. "Operations of mills and furnaces at many plants are intermittent. Facilities are shut down one week to await an accumulation of orders and then started up another week to process these orders."

WEEK'S RISES

Regarding this week's production rise, it was pointed out that the improvement was not uniform as to districts. The sharpest gain was in the Wheeling-Weirton area, where the rate jumped 19 points to 56 per cent of capacity.

Pittsburgh remained unchanged at 24 per cent. Elsewhere there were increases or no change in operations. The Youngstown district operating rate was down one point to 40 per cent. The South three points lower at 46 per cent, and the Southern Ohio district off two points to 39 per cent.

HAND-TO-MOUTH POLICY

Hand-to-mouth buying is the policy of most steel users, it was said.

Regarding formal negotiations on a new U. S. Steel Corporation contract, which are slated to begin February 1, the report said:

"The situation with respect to wages and prices is fraught with more than the usual complexities. It is difficult to see, for example, how forward policies on wages and prices can be established until business has some cleared indication of the government's intention on taxes, competition with private enterprise and of its future attitude toward employers of labor.

"Steel companies are showing no disposition to make concessions on prices."

Scrap prices marked time this week, the Iron Age composite price index being at $18.4 ton for the third week.

Industries Need U. S. Aid, Says Brackman

Unless Massachusetts has the co-operation of President Roosevelt and Congress, no relief is in sight for the Bay State industries, is the opinion of State Senator David M. Brackman of Roxbury.

He says that protection must be assured or many of the industries here will close their doors or work on a part time basis.

The Roxbury senator favors having the Massachusetts Legislature pass a memorial to Congress to bring about relief.

... an exclusive statement to the Boston Evening American, Senator Brackman said:

"Figures in the Boston press of January 18th, show there were greater numbers of unemployed in New England in general, than in other parts of the United States. Industry here has been injured drastically by the tariff situation.

"Our big industries are the shoe and textile industries. The fishing industry may also be classed as one of our larger businesses. The Japanese are responsible for curtailment in our fishing because frozen fish is shipped here at greatly reduced costs.

"The shoe industry has been injured greatly by the great importation of Czechoslovakian cemented shoes.

"The gravity of this situation can be better understood when we realize that over 50 per cent of all women's shoes manufactured in United States are manufactured in New England."

Seeks to Delist Mother Lode

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (INS)—The N. Y. Stock Exchange today asked SEC permission to delist the capital stock of Mother Lode Coalition Mines Co. of Alaska. There are 2,500,000 shares of the stock which Copper holds 660,000.

The exchange pointed out that the company has reported no new copper deposits have been uncovered. Seven stockholders protest Dec. 14. He says the commission will take the case under advisement.

Heads Nickel Plate, Pere Marquette

CLEVELAND, Jan. 19 (AP)—George D. Brooks, president of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, was elected vice-president of the Pere Marquette and Nickel Plate Railroads was elected to the presidency of the two latter lines.

In all three positions Brooks, 59 years old, succeeds W. J. Harahan, who died Dec. 14. He steps to a directorship on all three roads.

Deal in France Good Lesson To America

Forbes Warns Same Situation May Develop Here

By B. C. FORBES

What is happening in France should impart a lesson to our own country.

This column devotes relatively little space to the daily alarms abroad. I was impressed when in Europe last summer by the difference between the attention paid by foreign newspapers to war and other scares than had been paid for a long time by Metropolitan American newspapers.

Americans were fed to excessive month after month—even year after year—on the whole of Europe was on the verge of going to war. Foreign newspapers took scarcely such a rabbit view, and they were right.

It is true that preparation must be assured or many of the industries here will close their doors or work on a part time basis.

The Roxbury senator favors having the Massachusetts Legislature pass a memorial to Congress to bring about relief.

... an exclusive statement to the Boston Evening American, Senator Brackman said:

"Figures in the Boston press of January 18th, show there were greater numbers of unemployed in New England in general, than in other parts of the United States. Industry here has been injured drastically by the tariff situation.

"Our big industries are the shoe and textile industries. The fishing industry may also be classed as one of our larger businesses. The Japanese are responsible for curtailment in our fishing because frozen fish is shipped here at greatly reduced costs.

"The shoe industry has been injured greatly by the great importation of Czechoslovakian cemented shoes.

"The gravity of this situation can be better understood when we realize that over 50 per cent of all women's shoes manufactured in United States are manufactured in New England."

CITES RESULTS

The reports the invariably results of the policies adopted in France have included: A sharp drop in production from the beginning of the year; a sharp increase in the number of unemployed; a sharp increase in the cost of living; a sharp increase in the number of strikes; a sharp increase in the number of bankruptcies; a sharp increase in the number of suicides; a sharp increase in the number of divorces; a sharp increase in the number of abortions; a sharp increase in the number of illegitimate births; a sharp increase in the number of prostitutes; a sharp increase in the number of drug addicts; a sharp increase in the number of alcoholics; a sharp increase in the number of mental cases; a sharp increase in the number of criminals; a sharp increase in the number of prisoners; a sharp increase in the number of executions

Relief Is Still Tied To Reform

New Tax Proposals Designed to Modify Present Laws

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

The Washington legislative mill continues to grind out a quaint mixture of business relief and reform. And while much may happen before proposed measures are enacted into law, one wonders about ultimate results with both pro and anti business interests insisting on adding their personal bit to grist.

Current discussions on tax revisions being heard by the House ways and means subcommittee provide an ideal case of the mixture of grist various groups want the legislative mill to grind. At the hearing yesterday the treasury introduced into the record, without reported comment, a tabulation of effective rates on corporations of various sizes under the proposed plan. Roughly, it provides that corporations with a net of $50,000 or other specified per cent of earnings at about the same or lower rates that they have to pay now if the undistributed profits 20 per cent of net earnings. Thus dividend reduction, presumably to assist concentration, as well as hiring increase in rates would be possible. Thus there is good and much desired news in this number one.

* * *

Proposed item number two is also in demand by business interests. As yet its details are not observed but the intention is clear to provide special allowances for companies making new investments in the business. Another familiar well defined suggestion is relaxation of capital gains taxes on partnership a step that would be of real benefit to business firms member. Now the tax bill under consideration pays particular attention to administration section designed to the holding company. By increasing materially the intercorporate income tax the first would be applied for their dissolution would be greatly increased. All of which suggests that the administration policy of freeing old companies while barring new has failed to inspire headway. Instead tightening taxes on worthless securities seems likely. Relief, it appears, can come only if accompanied by reform which makes one wonder just what the final results will be.

PRICE RELATIONSHIPS

While many columns have been written on the present plight of commodity prices and their probable trends, the writer has seen little on the relationship between raw materials and finished products. It is a subject that requires a study of past behavior, which he is not taking too great a liberty, in our opinion, to expect a parallel, if not an exact performance. Finished goods prices roughly too off some three to five months after raw materials. On the downside they rebound out some, what faster, due perhaps to the pressure for liquidity during depressions.

* * *

Now for what has happened. Rawes made a high in nine months days of March. But finished goods weathed until January, a month after September. Such is the slow transition of higher costs. Now it looks as though raws have made a top in December and if the usual sequence of events takes place it is our forecast that finished goods will decline and end of March it is reasonable to expect the inauguration of a new period of finished goods prices. Notice how this date approximation fits in with the statement of many industrial and business leaders as to the probable time that will elapse before inventories are established. They may one fashion his own tools for checking the statements of others.

VOLUME LACKING

About the only thing that saved this market for a marriage of bearish advices, fired by both technicians and letter writers, is the lack of volume. Monday the list slipped at a crucial time, but on diminished turnover. Again on Tuesday it eased, but once again volume was smaller than in the previous full session. Almost every other technical indicator of importance is still favorable and if volume does pick up now we will count on a test of the recently established highs. Should trading fail to pick up on further weakness, or if a rally on better volume has a poor follow through then the list shortly scores new highs all around. It is a two-sided picture and this writer is frank to say that all he will attempt is a presentation of both.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 19, 1938

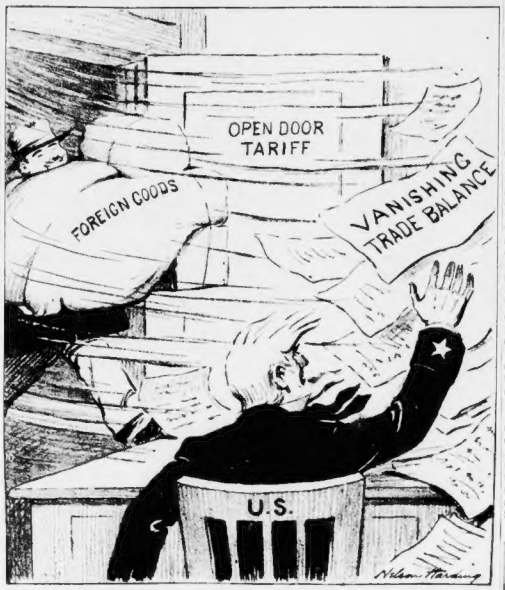
The fruit of the righteous is a tree of life; and he that winneth sols is wise.—Proverbs XI, 30.

The text fo. today is suggested by the Rev. Harold J. Ockenga, pastor of Park Street Church, Boston. The next text will suggested by the Rev. Francis Webster, rector of Christ Church, Boston.

The Editor Says:

Shut That Door!

By Nelson Harding



NEW ENGLAND flood control and the average college football have one thing in common; they both get tossed about.

For two years, ever since the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers submerged valley cities and towns, the question of building adequate dams and reservoirs has been kicked from Boston to Washington and from Washington to Boston.

What will be done—whether we shall receive protection from future disasters or whether we must wait until more property is destroyed and more lives lost—nobody knows.

Only one fact is clear: Mr. Roosevelt is determined that the Federal Government will own and control every flood control dam and reservoir that will be built in New England.

Otherwise, not a dollar of the seven million dollars of New Deal money that has been promised will come our way.

What the President, more than anybody else, ought to realize is that this seven million is NEW ENGLAND'S OWN MONEY.

It represents but a small part of the vast fortune that has been taken from this section to build dams, reservoirs and almost everything else in the South, West and Middle West.

Therefore, if there is an ounce of fairness and justice left in Washington, that seven million should be returned to New England to finance the kind of flood control our legislatures have approved.

"WHAT—NO LEGS?"

—Many men will be asking that question a few weeks hence, for word now comes from New York that stylists have decreed knee-length pajamas for spring and summer wear. They are supposed to be more comfortable.

Our belief is that both the abbreviated garments and the argument that justifies them are ridiculous. Moreover, we have a well-founded suspicion that most men will agree with us.

Of course, the real purpose of shortening legs and sleeves is to save cloth. Hitler started it when he ordered two inches trimmed from each shirt-tail.

What such economy will do to the American cotton industry and especially to New England mills requires little explanation. When less cloth is used, there is bound to be a BIGGER SURPLUS and FEWER JOBS.

Consequently the gentleman who wears up-to-the-knees pajamas at night is quite likely to find himself wearing the patched trousers of depression during the day

THE WHIPPING POST

—and the ducking stool will be dragged out of museums and set up as legal instruments of punishment in Massachusetts if the Legislature accepts a bill advocated by some Senators and Representatives.

The bill would doom drunken drivers and kindred lawbreakers to receive a certain number of lashes on their bare backs on days specified by the courts.

Penalties of this kind may have their merits. Delaware still has the whipping post and apparently likes it. But to the majority of people such punishments belong in the Dark Ages.

When we, admittedly among the most progressive of States, begin to beat and duck prisoners, we shall have to confess that we are turning backward. It will be a sorry day.

And not the least of our sorrows will be the probability of someone's going before the Legislature and proposing that we take another step in the direction of our Colonial ancestors and burn witches.

A POPULAR DECISION

—is the Supreme Court ruling upholding the Legislature's repeal of the Massachusetts Pre-Primary Convention Law. Long ago, the people lost faith in this worthless statute.

The only group that will shed tears will be the politicians who, in the manner of expert chess players, hoped to control the conventions. Politicians prefer to select nominees and present them to the people.

The fact that the voters on two occasions defeated the choices of pre-primary conventions and elected men of their own choosing should have been sufficient evidence that the pre-primary law was not serving a useful purpose.

But apparently it was not sufficient evidence. Like the man from Missouri, the statute's backers had to be shown.

A FITTING MEMORIAL

—to a deserving woman is the beautiful Community Center at Winchester, N. H., made possible by the generosity of Granite State Governor Francis P. Murphy. It will endure for years as a monument to the Governor's mother, Ellen Lambert Murphy.

Our opinion is that this gift will be remembered as one of the Governor's greatest acts. It is proof that, though he has achieved unusual success in business and politics, he has not forgotten the good mother whose inspiration and guidance were largely responsible for that success.

Congress has the duty of levying THE DOOR of the home market to tariffs on foreign imports.

Congress also has the duty of ratifying treaties with foreign nations.

Both these duties have been abdicated by an Act of Congress which permits the State Department to negotiate "reciprocal" trade treaties, reducing our protective tariff, without submitting the treaties to the Senate.

These treaties are OPENING the products of foreign factories and labor, and are CLOSING THE DOORS of American factories employing American labor.

Congress should resume its abdicated duties, and protect American industry and labor.

And American citizens should reject the State Department's free trade policies by BUYING AMERICAN.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.

THE metropolis has a thousand or so cafe entertainers who have never risen above their mediocre niches. In the cheaper places they wait on table and go into their song or dance upon request. Mostly they play to a neighborhood clientele.

Nightly in white coats they are a-teeter with prop smiles to toss aside their trays and go through a never-changing routine. Usually they receive $35 a month pay but with tips average $30 a week. The most prolific field for their talents is the Yorkville beer hall section of 86th street.

The exceptions to the rule that the singing waiter always remains a singing waiter are notably the talented composer Irving Berlin, who, as Izzy Baline, caroled for the patrons of Nigger Mike Salter's dive in Chinatown, and the irrepressible Jimmy Durante.

In his Coney Island beer joint days Jimmy, with his slouchy walk and gleaming smirk, was regarded as a bit moronic. But he was smart enough to take the same fumiddiddles up to Broadway and then out to Hollywood and cash in on it to the tune of several thousands a week.

Printers in Manhattan are the best dressed of the unionized workers. The blowzy tramp of another generation has passed from the scene. Park Row swung with early morning canes in the days when the walking stick was fashionable. And there was one printer, Cope Hyatt—on the old Herald I believe—who used to swank it to the opera in Inverness.

Most erudite of the printers is Ben DeCasseres, now turning in editorials. In formative Philadelphia days he was a hand-set printer at the case. In this field he developed his flair for the Fancy Dan words that have made him known and treasured by word beaglers.

Few scribblers make the highfalutin phrase so casual and understandable.

One of the most popular debutantes of the season is the attractive 17 year-old Esme O'Brien. She speaks several languages, plays a variety of musical instruments and trips the lightest fantastic in the local palaces of dance. Her father, Edmund O'Brien, a popular club man, is also an expert delineator of the modern dance and when he and his daughter glide out on the floor the other customers tip-toe to chairs just for a chance to watch.

A number of clubs no longer drop nor post members for non payment of dues. These include the theatrical as well as the haunts of the Tories. If investigation shows that loss of job or failing dividends are responsible, the victims are permitted enjoyment of privileges just the same. That is all save, of course, a charge account. There are rumors several such organizations are planning to close until skies clear.

The beautiful mother of Helen Menken and Grace Menken Lytell is deaf and dumb as was their father. This parentage is reputedly responsible for the expressive gesturing of both actresses on stage and off. They learned the sign language before they learned to talk. It's most interesting to watch the two daughters carry on an animated conversation with their mother in this mode of expression. Most of the signs, incidentally, are from the Indians and when understood are rare symbols of simplicity.

Editors and writers who know of the handicaps are astounded at the high quality of fiction the deserved dean of American literature, Booth Tarkington, is turning out. Several recent stories are considered equal to anything he has done, a record which includes Monsieur Beaucaire, The Gentlemen from Indiana and Penrod, to name a few. He is in his 70's and recuperating from an illness that permits him to sit up only a few hours a day on his Maine porch, coupled with the fact that one eye has collapsed and there's only partial vision in the other.

The Marry-Go-Round

By Helen Rowland

MIXED GRILL

Marriage is not always a failure. Like a Christmas cigar-lighter, it SOMETIMES works so well that everybody is surprised.

The honeymoon is over when a man can sit down calmly and enjoy a hearty dinner opposite a woman with whom he is not on speaking terms.

Nothing makes a girl who "sympathizes" with a married man so indignant as to discover that he is still running around with his wife.

Once in every man's life one woman occupies his whole heart. If she moves out he usually divides it into little compartments and keeps it filled with transients.

The radio will never displace the piano in the average home, says Reno Ruth, because there isn't room on top of any radio for the ash-trays and the empty cocktail glasses.

When a man with a pint-size heart meets a girl with oceans of love to offer, the result is bound to be an embarrassing spill.

Among the most prominent modern women, there are many who have achieved great success as matrimonial failures. Sometimes an actress is known by the husbands she keeps—divorcing.

It is really no disgrace for a man to help his wife with the dishes, but almost any man would rather he caught robbing the baby's bank than holding a dish-towel.

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

IF YOU should go to London Town and hear a muffled sound under the marble flooring of Westminster Abbey, that would be Earl Roberts of Kandahar, Pretoria and Waterford, revolving in his grave. Or if a grim, reproachful shade dissolves in and out of the fog and night of Downing street, that's Kitchener of Khartoum. The captains and the kings departed, and England was licked by a crooner.

Britain's little hollow square around the microphone gave the desert tribes news of an Arab shot for possession of arms, the booming of Big Ben and "God Save the King"—all good old blowm in the bottle empire stuff. But away out in the desert sleek, wavy-haired, perfumed Abdul Wahab, the Arabian Bing Crosby, squatted on his heels and crooned tales of love and moonlight, of stars and the lustrous hair of the one who would share his oasis.

It was a simultaneous and competitive broadcast over the six Arab countries between Britain and Italy—Abdul crooning for Il Duce. The police almost had to stop the contest. All over Arabia Felix the Arabs, from sheiks to fellahin, tuned out England, Big Ben and all, and tuned in Italy.

The next day England countered with Ronald Phillips and his jazz singers, but, so far as this observer could learn, the box score showed another smashing victory for Italy.

But the battle goes on. England, an old, established firm, and Italy, a newcomer in the empire business, are blasting radio all over Arabia. The continued allegiance of the many millions of Islam, of life or death importance to Britain, cushion India to the north, hold suzerainty over rich and undeveloped oil fields and guard the environs and approaches of the Suez Canal.

A vulnerable spot of empire is this ancient Arabia Felix to which the Italian Lorelei is now crooning. And England, telling first of one "down among the dead men," as Kipling might have done, now dragoons her most insidious crooner for empire service. Gilbert and Sullivan would have done something with that.

Gnarled, leathery, shrewd-eyed old Ibn Saud, ruler for England of Saudi Arabia, the largest Arab state, heard the broadcasts, meditated long and said nothing. His palace window looks out over Mt. Moah, where Moses died. Arabs have long memories, clear back to the day of that earlier Italian empire when Arabia was the rich pawn of clashing foreign armies.

There may have been a smile lurking under Ibn Saud's beard as he looked far out over Mt. Moah and listened to the empire crooning match, for he has a sense of humor. At the entrance to his exotic oriental reception chamber he has a pair of those concave and convex Coney Island mirrors in which one sees his person ludicrously distorted. An imposing diplomat or an august desert chieftain, on entering, sees this sudden, monstrous distortion and in that instant his cute little schemes are knocked out of his head.

Old Ibn Saud advances courteously, takes him by the hand and explains that he had not meant to embarrass his guest. He makes it clear that the fixed semblance of reality is often fraudulent and deceiving, and that it is sometimes a salutary thing to disturb it, drastically, and make possible an easy and friendly association without pretense. That's why he sets up the mirrors at his chamber door.

It is said that the guest, after he recovers from his nervous breakdown, always responds to an impulse to be frank, friendly and confidential—with Ibn Saud.

The Political Parade

By George Rothwell Brown

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.

PROBABLY only one Democratic leader at the Capitol wasn't knocked right off his feet by the President's blast against holding companies—all holding companies.

That man is the daddy of the anti-holding company theory. His name is Garner. He's agin' 'em all! He sold the big idea to the boss—not vice versa.

Now, whether Cactus Jack had any hand in the timing of Mr. Roosevelt's press conference announcement, is conjectural. Some down at the Senate think maybe so. But the Vice-President has been veering toward the conservative side here lately, especially with respect to the mounting cost of government, and this attack by the President came at a moment that made it anything but conservative.

It blended right in with Robert H. Jackson's Rochester speech against holding companies, and both the President's blast, and Jackson's blast, contained an identical phrase, the one about financial bigness "based on wind and water."

It is an astonishing thing that the President should have outlined such a policy at the very moment he was seeking to secure the cooperation of business and government, and without previous consultation with party leaders in Congress.

But it is true that there was no such previous consultation. No legislation that would dissolve all holding companies has been in consideration before any committee of Senate and House.

From the political point of view, Mr. Roosevelt, by seeking to translate his theory into statute, would complete the alienation of the Southern Democracy already carried to such extremity by the determination to fasten a carpet-bag enforcement of a Federal anti-lynching law on the late Confederacy.

It will be recalled that when the Tommy Corcoran-Sam Rayburn utilities bill was up, the House Committee on Interstate Commerce, of which Mr. Rayburn was then the chairman, refused to include a "death sentence" provision in the bill.

Mr. Rayburn offered such a provision from the floor, as an amendment, and it will be recalled that it was defeated. The Senate included such a provision, by a narrow margin, and finally in conference a compromise "death sentence" was agreed upon, and was accepted by the House.

Mr. Roosevelt has lost prestige and following in the House since then. He could not get a bill through that body today abolishing all holding companies. He would split his coalition party wide open if he tried. The guess is he won't try—not at this session.

What the President has overlooked, among other things, is that many Southern States, by State law, ACTUALLY REQUIRE FOREIGN CORPORATIONS TO SET UP HOLDING COMPANIES under certain conditions.

It is interesting to see Undersecretary of the Treasury Magill endorsing the Ways and Means Tax Bill.

Magill is the real author of the very laws which have worked such hardship to recovery they must now be modified.

The Senate may repeal these punitive tax laws entirely. Strong sentiment for that at the north end of the Capitol.

March of Events

By Benjamin DeCasseres

THE tremendous power of fiction in our lives is illustrated by the fact that when we read the words "Mikado of Japan" in the newspapers we do not think of a slim, middle-aged man, generally photographed on horseback, who is named Hirohito, but of Gilbert and Sullivan's Mikado and the opening line of his famous song in the opera, "My object all sublime."

The character of the Mikado in the opera is, of course, purely a burlesque creation. It is, nevertheless, a powerful satiric dig by both Gilbert and Sullivan at the pretences of absolute rulers.

So great is the power of fiction that some years ago when the Japanese-British alliance was in full force "The Mikado" was forbidden, at the request of the Japanese ambassador, to be performed in Great Britain.

What the touchy Japanese need for their education is a nation-wide attendance, if such a thing were possible, at a Tokyo performance of "Pinafore" wherein the English take their own navy for a "ride," and "I'd Rather Be Right," the current Kaufman-Cohan musical production, where Americans take the President, his cabinet and the Supreme Court for a "ride."

The ability "to take it" and like it is a test of the democratic spirit.

How's your will-power?

Mr. Theos Bernard, a young Tucson, Ariz., lawyer, who has just returned from "mysterious" Thibet, tells us, through the North American Newspaper Alliance, of "a hermit who had spent twenty years in a cell no larger than a telephone booth without once lying down."

He is 70 years old, vigorous and lives on yak's milk.

These feats of the will in the East are supposed to have some religious significance—just what they are no one has ever figured out to my satisfaction.

In the West, the expenditures of the normal will-power of a Galileo, a Columbus, an Edison or of a Washington in an eight years' war that appeared to seem to me more useful than a ton of this Oriental pathological exhibitionism which passes for "supreme tests of the will."

Speaking of fear in its relation to "regressions," "depressions" and "panics," one of the most penetrating remarks ever made on this matter was by Seneca, a Roman philosopher, who lived several thousand years ago.

"Lack of confidence is not the result of meeting with great difficulties—the difficulties come from lack of confidence," said he, herein, no doubt, trying to advise his ruler, the fiddle-plucking Nero, how to take up a "lag" in Roman business.

Today, Seneca's saying should, however, be made to work BOTH WAYS. It is not enough for business to have supreme confidence in the policies of the Administration. The Administration should also show supreme confidence in our industrialists and business men.

But when legitimate riches and enterprise come to be looked on as almost criminal activities, then "confidence" disappears and the "great difficulties" pile up mountain-high.
